S.B. Morse Once Again Makes It 'Hole In One'

NOW that the fishing season with its fish tales is fast becoming a matter of history, S. B. Morse, of 143 South Everett street, street, crack golfer, is being cited as the main character in a yarn that puts in the shade all stories, fish or otherwise.

While a-golfing yesterday afternoon it is said that Mr. Morse niblicked himself right into the "Hole in One" Club. From the first hole to the seventh the game had been of the usual stereotyped variety, but when the tee was reached before the eighth hole Mr. Morse took one husky fling. And then—

The little white spheroid flew humming through the air and straight into the hole in the middle of the eighth green.

This is the second time Mr. Morse has made a hole in one in the past fifteen years, and he is hoping to perfect his skill so that he can make the course in nine!

As for Mrs. Morse, she is keeping up with the family's golf record, and yesterday, while her husband was getting ready for his big drive, she was winning first prize in the women's open day contest.

U. S. CONSULATE PARTLY WRECKED

Building in Mexico City Damaged by Bomb; No One Is Injured

MEXICO CITY, May 18.—The United States consulate was partly wrecked by a bomb early today but no one was injured. The attack is regarded as the work of some individual, evidently a fanatic.

John Barton Payne and Charles Beecher Warren, United States commissioners attending the "recognition conference" with two Mexican commissioners, were notified of the explosion.

Warren said he felt sure that some disgruntled individual was responsible and that no organized plot existed.

It is possible that the bomb makers may have attempted to impede the work of the commissioners, but officials stated that the conference would continue as though nothing had happened.

One whole side of the consulate building was blown out. The explosion took place about 2:15 a. m. Investigation showed that the bomb evidently had been crudely constructed of black powder and was set off with a lighted fuse.

No cause was given for the wreck, but an investigation was started.

SINGERS WIN PRAISE AT CONCERT

Madrigal Club's Concert Is Staged by Talented Local Artists

The Madrigal club sustained its reputation of being a club that really sings, in the second concert of the fourth season, presented last night in the auditorium of the Tuesday Afternoon club house. Friends of the club attending accorded Mrs. Charles A. Parker, director; Mrs. John A. Wright, accompanist; the club members, and assisting artists, a most inspiring ovation. The concert was given under the auspices of the Non-Section members of the Tuesday Afternoon club.

It was the first Madrigal affair in the new club house, and the pleasing tone qualities and harmonization of the singers' voices were more thoroughly appreciated and enjoyed because of the perfect acoustic properties of the auditorium.

In assembling the club, twenty-eight talented singers were brought under the training of Mrs. Parker, and to her much praise is due for welding this group into a harmonious chorus. Their ensemble work is wonderfully done, and to satisfy their audience last night they repeated two of their selections. Were a criticism made of the program it would be that there were no solo numbers by individual members of the club. There are Mesdames Helen G. Cole, Helen MacMullin, A. M. Draper, John Cotton, Charles A. Parker and other talented singers, whom Glendalians are always delighted to hear.

Selections Appeal

Of the first three club numbers, "The Call" (Mark Andrews), "Love Is So New" (Barlow) and "The Dance" (Moszkowski), the first, a low, sweet spring song, and the gay dance tune of the last, were the best.

In the next group, "A Storm" (Risher) and "Mah Lindy Lou" (Strickland-Harris), the harmony in the first was perfect, and the negro love song was beautifully sung and repeated in response to the applause received.

Another delightful number was "The Swan" (Saint-Saens), by the club, and Hazel Linkogel, violinist. Miss Linkogel's playing was without fault, and the voices of the club blended in a pleasing accompaniment to the sweet, alluring melody played by the violinist.

Following the intermission the club presented "The Tragic Tale" (Fox), "Morning" (Oley Speaks), "My Desire" (Nevin), and "Summer" (Chaminade), all aptly chosen for the club voices and pleas-

Department Store Owner Is Victim of Pneumonia, Nervous Trouble

LOS ANGELES, May 18.—Arthur Letts, millionaire owner of the Broadway Department store, one of the foremost department stores in the West, died at his home, near Hollywood early this morning.

Mr. Letts' death was due to pneumonia, brought on by a nervous breakdown. He was 61 years old. His wife, from whom he was separated, is living in San Francisco.

Mr. Letts came to Los Angeles from Seattle in 1896, where a disastrous fire had wiped out his business and left him bankrupt. However, he soon re-established himself in business here, and within a remarkably short time had paid off his Seattle indebtedness. His first business venture here was the purchase of the Williams & Company Dry Goods store, at Fourth and Broadway. He named that business The Broadway Department store, which name it still bears. He erected the present building on the same location in 1914.

Native of England

In addition to his business efforts, Mr. Letts was a keen lover of education and juvenile welfare, and his two hobbies were horticulture and the collecting of rare marbles. His pretentious home, known as Holmby Home, in Hollywood, is surrounded by a park of 30 acres.

Mr. Letts was a prominent clubman and was identified with several local organizations.

Ht was born in Holmby, Northamptonshire, England, June 17, 1862. Later he came to America, and in August of 1886 married Miss Florence Phillip of Toronto, Canada. They had tnree children, Florence Edna Letts, Mrs. Harold Janss and Arthur Letts, Jr., who has been actively engaged lately in conducting his father's business.

During the Reil rebellion in Northern Canada, Mr. Letts volunteered and was rewarded by the Canadian government.

The most important bill before the senate is the Duval motor bux tax measure, amended yesterday but still facing the bitter opposition of the motor bus interests. In case the calendars of bills are not clear by 5 o'clock this afternoon the clocks will have to be stopped until the bills are disposed of.

BANDIT VICTIMS HELD IN TEMPLE

Prisoners Suffer Hardships As Captors Bargain Over Ransom

By EDNA LEE BOOKER
For International News Service

SHANGHAI, May 18.—American and foreign captives held by Chinese bandits are detained in an old temple on the top of Peotzuku mountain, and it is feared that a week or ten days must elapse before they are released, according to information received today from Lloyd Lehrbas. The bandits converted the mountain top into a fortress. Lehrbas, who is a newspaper man, was captured by the bandits, but escaped. He went from Shanghai to Tsao Chwang, not far from the bandit stronghold, to investigate and give what aid he could. It was from that town he sent his information.

According to latest reports the prisoners had only two days' food supply. The only water came from a small spring at the foot of the mountain which yields a gallon an hour.

Suffer Hardships

The prisoners sleep in the temple doors. The weather on the mountain top is cold and blankets are scarce. There is considerable discomfort.

Negotiations for the release of the prisoners are deadlocked. The officials are charged with making only a pretense at a settlement. The regular troops have not been withdrawn, although the government representatives promised the bandits that this would be done. They still surround the prisoners.

Carl Crow of the American Chamber of Commerce of Shanghai, and Lehrbas organized an "express service" to get daily rations through the bandit lines to mountains of Paotzukku.

GRADUATING EXERCISES SCENE OF TRAGEDY

Trample on Women and Children in Battle to Flee Flames

BULLETIN

CAMDEN, S. C., May 18.—The appalling toll of death taken in the Cleveland schoolhouse fire mounted this afternoon to seventy-six, fully half of them children, and bade fair to go higher before night because of the terrible injuries suffered by those who escaped the fire-swept inferno.

A hurried consultation between health and city officials at noon today resulted in a decision that all of the victims, both identified and unidentified, will be buried at 6 o'clock tonight because of the condition of the bodies.

CAMDEN, S. C., May 18.—Fire, resulting from the explosion of a kerosene lamp in the main auditorium of the Cleveland schoolhouse, eight miles south of Camden, caused the death last night of probably more than seventy persons, and injury to many more, according to the latest reports received here today by the coroner's office.

It is practically impossible, county officials state, to determine the exact number of lives lost until a careful check-up has been made of all those present.

The schoolhouse was crowded with children and their parents when the explosion occurred, and most of the lives lost are attributed to the mad rush for the doorways and windows by the crowded audience.

Those behind, nearest the platform and in the front seats of the hall, were not so fortunate. With no windows from the platform and the smoke and confusion growing worse every second, there resulted an awful, terrified scramble for the stairs. It was sheer panic and it paid the usual price of panic.

Trample on Children

Women and children gay in their white graduation costumes, were knocked down and trampled under foot and the interior of the hall became in a few minutes a screaming, milling mass of horror-stricken people, intent only on one thing—escape.

Some of those who escaped said later that the doors of the auditorium "opened the wrong way" and that a score of persons got jammed against a closed door and thus held up escape for many people.

The superintendent of schools, on the stage with diplomas in his arms, made a futile attempt to stem the tide of panic. He shouted that all could get out safely if they took their time, but his voice was lost in the screams of the women and children.

The superintendent and those of the graduating class, being

Asserts Money Was Wasted During War

KANSAS CITY, May 18.—"We are going to be at the mercy of the world in the next war unless we take some steps toward greater military preparation while yet there is peace," declared Maj. Gen. Hanson E. Ely, in charge of the general service schools at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., who spoke at a dinner of the Kansas City Implement, Vehicle & Hardware association.

"When this country entered the World War, the way it spent money was disgraceful," continued General Ely. "The treasury doors were opened wide and the money was poured out into unwise expenditures. Congress appropriated $626,000,000 for airplanes, and I don't suppose more than $100,000 of that amount was properly spent. Cantonments were built all over the country, costing, on the average, $11,000,000 each. They were built on the cost plus basis, and they cost plenty of money.

"We sent 2,000,000 men over to France and, in the emergency when France was holding the lines, General Pershing offered all the men we had. It was a good move, but how about the men? If they have told you about the affair—if you had sons and brothers there—you know about the unpreparedness. Our men were used as cannon fodder, and the results obtained were not nearly commensurate with the losses."

Professor Describes Juvenile Delinquents

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 18.—Stating that "once in a while we have an interesting case of dual personality," Dr. H. H. Goddard, of Ohio State University, head of the Ohio Bureau of Juvenile Research, told a local audience that "all juvenile delinquency causes were divided into three classes: Environment, which influences a normal child wrongly; feeble mindedness, which, usually, is the result of inherited disease, and psychopathy, where the brain is over-developed in one direction and under-developed in others."

STORMS in the middle west this week have taken a huge toll in human lives and property. It is the usual occurrence for tornadoes to sweep through the prairies of Oklahoma, Texas, Missouri, Illinois, Iowa and other states.

And it is because of these storms that many of the rural population retire to southern California where an almost ideal climate is found. Indeed, it is one of the prime reasons for the wealth of the nation being fast centered in the most equable clime in the world.

Albert W. Atwood, in last week's Saturday Evening Post, tells the story of "Money From Everywhere." It relates how in forty years, the short span of man's active life, the hacienda of Los Angeles has outstripped all of her sister cities in the west.

His findings are rather amusing at times, for, like so many people, he admits that words fail to express the fullness of Southern California's development. And there is nothing more pitifully funny than a writer run out of words.

Atwood, like a good reporter, made the round of the banks and got their figures on growth, which are surprising enough, but he utterly fails to tell the story of Los Angeles' growth because he lacks the inspiration.

The Saturday Evening Post would not dare print the truth about Los Angeles by an Angeleno, for the whole world, including New York, where the sun rises, and San Francisco, where the sun sets, would be on its ear at the audacity of anyone outside of Los Angeles to give full credit to the great, now imperial, metropolis.

In ignorance there is bliss, and what the world doesn't know about Los Angeles and Southern California will bring joy to those who actually come here and find out the facts for themselves.

The object lessons are many.

People who visited Glendale or Long Beach or Los Angeles three years ago would fail to recognize the business sections of these cities today. The changes are so wonderful, the prosperity so great, the progress so marked that only a magician's wand could have effected the new situation.

Whereas there was no industry to speak of ten or fifteen years ago, outside of the agricultural and citriculture products, this section now has a payroll and developed resources self-sufficient. Business men have found conditions ideal for manufacturing, exporting, wholesaling and merchandising.

Great credit must be given the Chamber of Commerce organizations for making these things possible. This boosting spirit of the southland can be traced to the organizers of civic enterprise who have consistently preached the gospel.

The newspapers, too, must come in for their share of the credit. In no other section of the country is there such newspapers as to be found in Southern California. There may be others greater, but certainly not better. There may be others prospering, but not more prosperous.

The Los Angeles Times holds the record for advertising; the Los Angeles Herald holds the record for circulation in the west, also percentage of advertising; and among the country newspapers there is achievement unequaled in similar fields.

To be a bit bold, The Glendale Evening News is one of the most prosperous, although surely not more profitable than those in Pasadena and Long Beach. The Glendale Evening News in five years' time has jumped from a four-page daily to an indomitable institution, printing an average of about fifteen pages daily during the first three months of this year, with a circulation which covers its own particular field like a blanket.

The Glendale Evening News boasts of one of the best publishing plants in Southern California. It reflects the community pride of Glendale in supporting its own newspaper, a complete newspaper, and nothing less.

The advertising columns of a newspaper indicate the spirit of a city.

The trained newspaper man can tell whether a town is dead or alive by looking at the merchants' display. In fact, you can gauge each business man by his presentation.

While it is admitted many stores do not write their own advertisements, they are the judges of that which is written and you know just how they feel about it.

And the public reads advertisements with as much relish as it does news. It has been trained to do so, and the merchant who does not take advantage of the opportunities offered in his home town paper is injuring only his own business.

SOLONS WRANGLE OVER TWO BILLS

Closing Hours of Session Are Marked by Struggle to Pass Measures

By GIL A. COWAN
Of The Evening News Staff

SACRAMENTO, May 18.—Closing hours of the California legislature today find the solons engaged in a wrangle over the terms of the Breed motor vehicle bills and the Duval license levy on motor carriers' gross earnings. The latter has been cut to 4 per cent.

A committee on free conference is expected to adjust the new motor regulations satisfactorily, also the terms of the 2-cent a gallon gasoline tax measure.

Assemblyman Willard Badham of Los Angeles will not press the Southern University branch bill, amended to give that institution $100,000 with which to buy additional land, as the governor assures him he has been more than liberal already, and will not sign the measure. He believes it will not be good policy for the university to endeavor to enlarge its present location in Los Angeles. Tremendous pressure is being brought to bear, however, this last day.

The assembly early today passed Senator Gates' bill transferring the offices of the State Gas and Oil Supervisor to Los Angeles, which assures the Southland of this department of the Bureau of Mines, it is said.

The senate passed by vote of 29 to 5 Kline's bill, establishing the Southern California State Fair at Riverside.

Mexico Large Buyer From Detroit, Report

DETROIT, May 18.—Mexico is proving herself a most desirable customer and patron of Michigan manufacturing firms, it was pointed out here recently.

Mexican commercial interests are spending approximately $400,000 a month in orders with producers of Michigan and a part of Ohio, the area contained in the consular district presided over by Alfredo Serratos, whose headquarters are in this city.

Michigan furniture is one of the big items that goes into shipments to the Latin republic. Detroit automobile firms are large participants in the export business, while pharmaceutical supplies, paint, varnish, dyes and electrical apparatus also are among the finished products in great demand there.

Ohio manufacturers probably surpass in volume the amount of goods sold by Michigan firms to Mexico, due to steel mills' pipe shipments into the oil fields.

The use of the automobile in Mexico is rapidly becoming general. Serratos said. There are 15,000 Ford cars traversing the streets of Mexico City this year. Cars of many other makes are in popular demand.

Consul Serratos says that Mexicans rapidly are turning to American made goods, despite the competition from European manufacturers. Ohio manufacturers are sending crayons, iron pipes for the oil fields, wheelbarrows, toys, rubber hose, rubber heels, machinery, tools, farm implements, stoves, nails, glassware and dump cars for use in the mines, Serratos said.

NOVEL HAT BOX

For the use of travelers a hat box has been invented that folds flat when empty.

SOMETHING is decidedly wrong with people who "go to pieces easily." It is not natural for one to "fly off the handle" when things do not go exactly right. This is so-called "nervousness" and it should be corrected at once.

Are You "Nervous?"

So-called nervous people have imperfectly working nerves, caused by an obstruction in the nerve circuit. Chiropractic offers permanent relief because it corrects the cause of the trouble. Results are positive.

CONSULTATION COSTS NOTHING

I take the greatest pleasure in explaining and proving what Chiropractic Adjustments have done and can do. We make a free analysis of your case and tell you frankly whether or not Adjustments would be beneficial to you. Telephone Glendale 26-W for an appointment.

The beauty, color and carefree spirit of spring were beautifully and artistically presented yesterday afternoon on the lawn at the Columbus Avenue school, where the kindergarten children directed by Miss Johnson, entertained the members of the Parent-Teacher association.

A May Pole showered with brilliant streamers, gay costumed dancers and happy songs all combined in a spring festival of entertainment.

STUDENTS STAGE SKIT ON SCHOOL

Relative Importance of Cow And Horse Is Subject Of Hot Debate

Think of the terrible influence upon history if Paul Revere had ridden a cow instead of a horse!

This awful possibility was dwelt upon with all its poignant horror by Miss Pauline Miller and George Karcher today in three assemblies at Glendale Union high school.

"Resolved: That the Cow Is More Important Than the Horse," was a question which was supported by Arden Ginaery and Miss Maurine Pemberton. The debate was given as a portion of a skit entitled "The Deestrict Skule."

The assemblies boosted the debate at South Pasadena high school tonight between Monrovia and Glendale for the championship of the Central league. The local school will be represented by Miss Betty Higgins and Paul Cunningham. The debater on each side making the higher score will be given $50 towards a college scholarship.

Members of the cast, besides being those mentioned, included Miss Helen Sherwood, "deestrict skule" teacher; Lee Shannon, bully of the class; Roma Staub, the sweet little girl; "Bob" Hatch, her sweetheart; Clifford Wolcott, the "ruffneck"; Jack Alvord, the nice boy; Golburn Danner, the glutton; Caroline Ayars and Vivian Nay, "the sinless twins." The skit was directed by Miss Mary Gladys Corry, coach of the debate.

GETS HOME RUN

CHICAGO, May 18.—Sheely, for Chicago, drove a home run into the left field bleachers today with Mogridge pitching for Washington, and scored Collins ahead of him. It was in the fourth inning, and made the score 7 to 1 in favor of the White Sox.

RAINBOW CHORUS TO SING TONIGHT

Special Music Program to Be Presented During Baptist Services

Tonight at the evangelistic meetings at the First Baptist church the "Rainbow Chorus" of boys and girls will sing. These young people have been in training and the program they will present tonight promises to be unique and interesting. Miss Rita Gould, unusual contralto, will be in charge of the music and will contribute a solo. The evangelist, Miss Amy Lee Stockton, will preach on the subject "Right About Face."

Last night Miss Stockton spoke on the "Return of Jesus Christ." Taking for her text the 27th verse of the 24th chapter of Matthew, "For as the lightning cometh forth from the east and shineth even unto the west, so shall be the coming of the Son of Man," the evangelist called attention to the comparisons between the lightning and the things characterizing the return of the Master. Her message in part follows:

Sustaining Thought

"Jesus is coming again! And the fact that He is coming ought to be the sustaining power in the lives of His people. The second coming of the Master is not to be confused with death, for death is not His coming to us, but, our going to be with Him. It is not to be confused with the descent of the Holy Spirit, for on the day when Peter was filled with the Spirit, and gave forth that great message, he referred to the return of the Master as an event still in the future. It is not to be confused with the destruction of the City of Jerusalem, for the events that have been prophesied as taking place when the Master comes did not in any wise take place when the Holy City was destroyed. The return of Jesus Christ is to be an outward, visible, personal appearing."

The comparisons made to the lightning in regard to this event were concerning the glory, the suddenness, and the purpose; namely, the lightning comes to purify, and in its coming there is also destruction. Purification of His people will be complete when Jesus comes, and there must also be the punishment of the unrighteous.

EXPERT TO TALK TO CONTRACTORS

H. C. Vandewater to Address Builders Exchange at Meeting Tonight

The Builders' Exchange of Glendale will be addressed tonight by H. C. Vandewater, in their quarters at 113 North Maryland avenue.

Mr. Vandewater's topic will be along lines of mutual interest to the members, as well as the city building department, announces Henry Molz, secretary-manager, co-operation being the keynote.

"A number of applications for membership will be presented at this meeting," states Mr. Molz, "and while this has been the case at practically every meeting since we organized, we have, nevertheless been very careful to enroll only the better class of men engaged in the building trades of this city, members feeling that a small and well selected membership is preferable to a larger one not so selected and of whose integrity and responsibility the exchange could not vouch.

"We are a public institution and only by good service at fair prices, can we hope to have our claims for patronage receive recognition. On these principles we stand."

Oakmont Club Manager On Tour of Inspection

H. M. Parker, general manager of the Oakmont Country Club, returned last night from Santa Barbara where he visited the La Cumbra Country Club. He was much impressed with the efficiency of a mower attached to a Ford which has five cutting units and cuts a swath of eleven feet. He also stopped at the Montecito Country Club.

He was accompanied by his wife and Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Dahlberg of Hollywood.

Dr. Ferris to Speak At Methodist Church

Attendants tonight at the First Methodist church are to hear an address by Dr. Lincoln A. Ferris of San Diego. He is to speak at 8 o'clock on "Some Men of the Hills."

According to Dr. Henry I. Rasmus, Dr. Ferris is one of the prominent speakers of the denomination.

A brotherhood banquet served by the women of the church will precede the lecture.

COMMITS SUICIDE

SEATTLE, May 18.—Because his wife rebuked him when he came home this morning and told her he had been drinking, Herman Kemnitz, 25, veteran United States immigration inspector, drew a revolver and shot himself through the head, dying a few hours later in the city hospital.

Twenty-five pairs of eyeglasses are kept in reserve by one corporation official, to be ready in case of breakage.

About 200 Glendale Young Folk Will Present Program

Baby Betty Jane Stewart, 3 years old, who will do a solo dance, "The Little Dewdrops," at the Children's Society Vaudeville presented by the pupils of Pearl Keller Brattain, at the Philharmonic Auditorium, Los Angeles, Saturday afternoon, May 19, for the benefit of the Crippled Children's Guild of the Orthopaedic Hospital-School. Baby Betty Jane Stewart will also appear in the group dance, "The Bluebirds."

Children of Glendale and vicinity, numbering upwards of 200, will entertain an audience of 3000 at the Philharmonic Auditorium, Los Angeles, at a 2:30 o'clock matinee Saturday afternoon, May 19, under the direction of Pearl Keller Brattain, of the Pearl Keller School of Dancing and Dramatic Art, 109-A North Brand boulevard, the big events being announced as a "Children's Society Vaudeville," presented for dren's Guild of the Los Angeles ddren's Guild of the Los Angeles Orthopaedic Hospital-School.

The children come from Glendale, Burbank, Eagle Rock, Pasadena, Hollywood, Long Beach and Los Angeles. They are practically all pupils of Mrs. Brattain and have been trained by her for weeks, in preparation for Saturday afternoon's event.

Outstanding among the little performers who will contribute to the entertainment is Bobby Lehman, aged thirteen, late of Pantages circuit and soon to do "big time" with Orpheum, for five years a Pearl Keller pupil and one of her discoveries. Bobby impersonates girls and is called "A Pocket Edition of Julian Eltinge." "The Diminutive Flapper" is the title of his act.

Another headliner on the program is little Richard Headrick who will render a violin solo, by permission of First National Pictures, for whom he is a star.

Tiny Anna Lacey, child soloist at the Children's church, Angeles Temple, Los Angeles, will sing several selections. Cecilia Mae Fischer, of Burbank, will head a "Bridal Ballet" by Pearl Keller's toe class. There will be an "Indian Ballet" of twelve girls and one boy, featuring the Marion Morgan work. A "Bluebird Ballet" will feature several tiny tots. And there will be a number called "The California Poppy Girls," featuring the Hunt sisters.

All the above dances are new, and in addition there will be numerous other numbers to be seen for the first time. In addition, there are to be given a number of dances that have proved very popular at past programs by Mrs. Pearl Keller Brattain, among them the "Balloon Dance" and "Eccentric Chinese Group Dance."

Mrs. Brattain has worked with children for many years and looks upon this benefit affair for the Los Angeles Orthopaedic hospital as the consummation of a dream.

"For many years I have dreamed of such an opportunity as this," says Pearl Keller, as she is familiarly and professionally known. "I have always loved children, and now I have the chance to do for them something bigger and finer than has heretofore been my privilege.

"I am proud to be numbered among those who have been called upon to help in the great work being done by the Orthopaedic hospital for the children of southern California, and I hope with all my heart that every one of these 3000 seats at the Philharmonic auditorium will be occupied Saturday afternoon.

"I am counting on Glendale to back up the movement by attending this performance in large numbers."

Norwegian Citizens To Hold Celebration

Glendalians who claim Norway as their native country will be interested in the announcement that the 4000 or more Norwegians in Los Angeles county will celebrate Norway's "Seventeenth of May" Sunday afternoon, May 20, at Sycamore Grove park, Los Angeles.

The seventeenth of May marks the date of Norway's becoming a free and democratic country. It was on May 17, 1814, that Norway adopted a constitution and declared herself an independent kingdom. Nobility was abolished, and almost universal suffrage established. Founded on these glorious principles of liberty and equality, under the enjoyment of an era of unbroken peace, Norway could not help making rapid strides forward. Since 1814 its population has tripled, its mercantile marine has quadrupled, and its industries and finances have been in a flourishing condition.

THEATRES

THE GLENDALE

"Brass Commandments" is a breezy story of the West, done in the inimitable style of Charles Alden Seltzer, popular writer of western yarns. The star is William Farnum. It is a Fox film.

Therre two girls in the story Wanda Hawley plays a capable opposite to Farnum and Claire Adams takes the heavier role. There is action, tons of it; the story retains interest by its dramatic tensity; the romantic skein is well woven, and the climax thunders with power.

Tom Santschi, as the lurking villain, gives a splendid performance. Screen audiences who recall the terrific struggle between Farnum and Santschi in "The Spoilers" will relish the tussle in the present film, which is equally as realistic.

Mr. and Mrs. Summerbell, the upants, having trouble with a oking chimney, called in mes Colgan to clean it.

He had occasion to go into the ar of teh house and there nd a quantity of sand in the grate. Before anything could done it was necessary to reve the sand and a shovel was ught into use.

A hard substance was struck and this was found to be a box containing treasury notes amounting to $3650.

Tells of Discovery

Mrs. Summerbell was called and told of the discovery. She took charge of the box and its contents, but had barely got away when another box was unearthed and notes found in this box amounted to $4200.

Then an old coffee tin was found but the amount of its contents was not stated. The workman judged it must have had in it as much as the other two boxes together, making in all more than $15,000.

Mrs. Summerbell took charge of all three boxes and handed Colgan 35 cents for his job, enjoining him not to say anything of what he had found. He kept his word, not even saying anything to the woman's husband, whom he saw frequently in the week.

HABITS OF BIRDS TOLD BY SAVANT

Scientist Reveals Secrets Of Feathered Denizens Of California

To the Indians, the Mission fathers and the pioneers of California this state was the land of sunshine, flowers and birds. And so it is today, and the native or adopted Californian cannot fail to be interested in the things of nature that he sees about him.

Glendale Evening News readers are particularly fortunate in having the opportunity of reading scientific sketches by Alfred Cookman, M. S., Glendale resident, and instructor in the science department at the Los Angeles Polytechnic high school. In this issue Professor Cookman tells of the characteristic nesting places of California birds.

By ALFRED COOKMAN, M. S.

There is nothing more beautiful in all nature than the flooding of light across the sky, across the earth at dawn; yet even as we watch it a great change takes place. The dew begins to slip off the leaves and move down the twigs. The tiny sparrows begin to stir and twitter, and one by one stretch forth their wings and disappear among the shrubbery. The coyote returns to his "dug-out" after a long run in the canyons. The owl and the night-hawk retire in the canopy of an oak tree, or in a hole in a bank. The frogs and crickets cease their croaking and chattering down near the lake, for the day is dawning in the east.

As the sun rises higher and the hour is 10 o'clock the splendor becomes more widely diffused. The color of the rose leaps to a high pitch, the tops of the willows are a mass of silver, the poplar seems to shake light from its leaves as though they were trembling little mirrors. Heat begins to radiate from the earth. Dust and moisture begin to rise. Sweet fragrances arise from the meadow grass. The flowers unfold their petals and color is everywhere. The birds are busy hunting for food. The world takes on new life.

How like spring time is this picture of the dawn of another day! The buds are opening on the trees. The grass is lifting its tiny leaf to the sunlight. The flowers are springing up here and there. The new chrysalis is bursting the delicate threads and the gorgeous moth and the butterfly are emerging into new life and activity, reincarnation, the adult species. The birds are courting. The mating instinct is in the air. The lure of romance and the love antics of the male bird charm the student of natural phenomena. "Nature speaks a various language."

Many Wild Birds

The state of California is particularly fortunate in its number and variety of birds. We have more birds in this state than in any other state in the Union. California has 576 species recorded as occurring within her confines. Over half the total number of resident species are found in Southern California. In the great sweep of country with Mexico on the south to Oregon on the north are to be found climatic conditions ranging from the Arctic circle to the tropics. The valleys blossom with roses and her mountains are crowded with perpetual snows. California is the land of sunshine, flowers and singing birds. It is the bird's paradise as well as the tourists'.

California's nesting season begins about the last of February with some species and the 15th of April with others, and extends through June. In the middle and northern states the season begins about the 25th of May to the 20th of June. The east enjoys four wonderful weeks of special opportunity.

When the hot season arrives in California, we see the birds hurrying into the high Sierras or the mountains of Arizona. Here they can get plenty of insect food, weed seeds and plenty of cool water. The meadowlark, a bird of the meadow and pasture-lands and a bird of valleys of the "Golden State," has been seen 8,000 feet in the mountains of Arizona during the late summer season. Humming birds follow the bloom of the flowers and retreat into the high Sierras when the flora dies down with the approach of summer. They return as winter creeps down the mountain slopes to the warm lowlands.

To find a nest requires skill and patience. One must know in a general way just what he is looking for. The essential points to be considered are a skilled knowledge both of topography and of the habits of birds, as well as keen, trained eyes and an alert mind.

Difference In Nests

There is a great difference in the kind of nests and in the skill shown by different species in nest construction. Some birds build no nest at all. There are many sea birds which lay their eggs on the bare rocks. The Texas nighthawk lays her eggs among the dead leaves on a bare rock or under a bank near some stream. The California Murre nest in great colonies on the islands off the Alaskan coast and on the Farralone Islands near San Francisco, on the bare rock.

Many ground birds, such as the quail, prairie hen, meadowlark and the tern, make hardly any pretense at nest building, but lay the eggs in a shallow depression hollowed out by the breast among the leaves or among the tall grass of the fields, or among sand dunes near the seashore. Many ground-nesting birds lay eggs that are so protectively colored that you would easily pass them without notice. They resemble the soil and the leaves with remarkable mimicry. So, why should the species labor in nest-building when a nest is not necessary? They are precocious birds when they hatch from the egg. A basket-like nest is only essential for birds that are born blind and naked. The nest must be well placed off the ground and in a secluded spot. Probably for greater safety from weasels, wildcats, foxes, snakes and other foes the birds first took to building in trees and bushes. Most such nests are perched in the crotch of a tree or shrub, although some, like the Anna humming bird and sometimes the robin, will saddle the nest on top of a twig or a bough. Among the trees of our canyons and city parks we often discover hanging nests of the most exquisite architecture—the Arizona-hooded, Bullocks, Orchard and Scott oriole. In the live oaks and water maples and willows the bush-tit hangs her cradle made of spider webs, moss, lichens, hair, paper, cotton-down, etc. The nest varies in length from five to twelve inches, with a small hole near the top, and is suspended among the leaves at the end of a delicate branch.

Among the tree dwellers we find some hawks, owls and eagles, the crow, the linnet, robin, chipping sparrow, dove, bluejay, blackbird, mocking bird, many warblers, thrushes, vireos and waxwings. Some birds are very particular and prefer special kinds of trees.

The chipping sparrow likes the cedars. The mocking bird a rose-bush in a shaded locality. The owl, a hollow tree, and the dove some live oak or willow. The robin has a liking for box-elders and maples, and the Arizona hood oriole a fondness for the palm in the park.

Nest Materials

Most song birds use small twigs, grass, fine fibrous roots, bark fibre and hair for the material of the nest. Many plaster this material together with mud, hay and leaves. This is seen well in the robin's, the black phoebe's and the swallow's nests. Many birds use great care in lining the nest with down, hair and feathers. The Willow goldfinch shows a marked ability at nest-building, lining the nest with down and feathers. The eider duck's nest is chiefly of feathers plucked from the breast of the mother.

Birds often display considerable ingenuity and discretion in the choice of a location for the nest. Some sea birds place their nest on inaccessible islands and cliffs. They do not need to construct much of a nest for the protection of their eggs and young. A number of birds live in hollow trees or stumps, as wrens, bluebirds, woodpeckers, owls, nuthatches, creepers, chickadees and flickers.

Some grebes build a floating nest of rushes and sedges which they fasten to growing stems of water plants.

The cow bird builds no nest at all. She deposits her eggs in the nests of other birds and forgets them. She is no mother—only a body!

A study of the nesting places of California birds affords a fascinating study in ornithology—"the consequent knowledge of birds with all that relates to them." Now is the opportune time to get out into the woodlands and down among the cattails of the lake, or probably you will take a trip into the mountains and see our wild birds at home, at work and at play.

SEELIG TO OPEN 4 NEW BRANCHES

Extension of Chain System of Stores Justified by Growing Trade

If the success of the Sam Seelig store at 135 North Brand boulevard can be taken as a basis for prediction, the four new Seelig stores to be opened on Saturday are destined to develop into strong units of the great chain of markets. The Glendale store has been operating for two years and is one of the busiest spots in the business section of the city.

The new stores will be in Anaheim, Beverly Hills, and two in Los Angeles city. The Seelig chain of markets stretches from Orange on the south to Lankershim on the north, from Redondo on the west to Pomona on the east. Every suburban locality and many prominent neighborhood sections in Los Angeles proper are served by Seelig markets.

The policy of selling at the same prices at all stores has done much to popularize the Seelig markets. One may buy, thirty-five miles from Los Angeles, at the same prices one finds in the center of the big city. The Seelig company sells everything with a moneyback guarantee.

Twenty-five Cars of Jars

As an indication of the magnitude of the local grocery business, the Seelig company recently received a shipment of twenty-five carloads of glass fruit jars. They also had one straight carload of jar rubbers come from the east. This is the first time anyone on the Pacific coast ever bought a full carload of rubbers at one time. Every week the Seelig company sells eight cars of sugar, two cars of milk, two cars of soap, besides thirty to thirty-five carloads of other goods.

To prepare for spring housecleaning, many carloads of cleansers, soaps, etc. were received, and an entire carload of washboards.

The increasing importance of Southern California in the eyes of eastern manufacturers and business men is readily established when they see a Pacific coast firm buying everyday commodities in such respectable quantities. Indeed it has been unusual for any firm west of St. Louis to buy in quantities the Seelig company uses right along.

Children's Day is now observed by nearly all churches throughout the world.

K. OF C. COUNCIL TO SAN GABRIEL

Special Show of Mission Play Draws Knights From Glendale

Knights of Columbus of the Glendale council will join members of all the councils in Los Angeles county tonight at a special performance of the Mission Play at San Gabriel. The performance will honor John Steven McGroarty, author of the play and member of the Los Angeles council Knights of Columbus.

The Glendale Knights are making extensive plans for two "kid" parties Saturday, May 26. In the afternoon they will entertain as their guests the real children and at night a jolly "kid" party for the grown-ups will be given.

Tonight the Knights are to meet at the clubhouse, 330 East Lomita avenue at 7 o'clock, to take automobiles for San Gabriel.

Find That Youth, Not Aged, Join Churches

NEW YORK, MAY. 18.—If a person has not joined a church by the time he or she reaches the legal age of twenty-one, the chances are three to one that he will not do so. This is the conclusion reached by Dean Walter Scott Athearns of the Boston University School of Religious Education, after an exhaustive study.

The records of 6,194 persons in forty-three states were tabulated. This is the first authentic study of its kind.

"More people join the Methodist church between their tenth and eleventh birthdays than in any other years of their lives," said Dr. Athearn. "Formerly they were supposed to join at sixteen or seventeen. Thus we have pushed the actual age of joining back about five or six years. In the Congregational church, the children are joining at thirteen instead of at fifteen.

"In the Presbyterian church, the largest number of people join the church between the ages of twelve and thirteen. In the Baptist church and in the Church of Disciples, the age of greatest frequency ranges from eleven to thirteen. The peak of all denominations is between thirteen and fourteen years.

"The statistics for all five denominations last year show that one-fourth of the persons joining a church were under the age of eleven years, ten months and twenty-two days. One-half, or fifty per cent of the church accessions, were people between the ages of eleven and twenty-one years."

Earlier studies of this subject published in 1900 showed the peak of greatest frequency to be between sixteen and seventeen years. These earlier studies have profoundly influenced Sunday school lesson writers. The new data will necessitate the reconstruction of much of the curriculum material now in use, and cause pastors to reconstruct their plans for preparatory membership of classes.

U. S. TROOPS MAY PUT STOP TO CHINESE BANDITRY

International Situation Develops As a Result of Raid on Train

When Chinese brigands robbed the luxurious train running between Pukow and Tien-Tsin, kidnaping many foreigners, including Miss Lucy Aldrich, daughter of the late Senator Aldrich from Rhode Island, and sister-in-law of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., they brought about an international situation which Dr. Jacob Gould Schurmann, American minister to China, described as "very serious." Brigadier General William D. Connor, commanding the 1500 American troops in China, was expected to take the field against the bandits unless the Chinese government acted instantly. Robert P. Scripps, editor of the Scripps-Howard chain of newspapers, was one of those reported kidnaped, but it was learned he was on a later train and escaped.

BLAME DEATH ON PHARAOH'S CURSE

George J. Gould, Sr., Victim Of Egyptian Gods, Is Belief in Paris

PARIS, May 18.—George Jay Gould, Sr., American financier and railroad magnate who died at his villa on the French Riviera Wednesday after a lengthy illness, may have been another victime of the "curse of the Pharaohs," according to a despatch from Mentone today telling of a superstitious report which has grown up there since the American's death.

Gould and his second wife were traveling in Egypt when Lord Carnarvon was engaged in opening the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen in the Valley of the Kings, where the ancient Pharaohs were buried thirty centuries ago.

Gould visited the tomb and joked with Lord Carnavon about Bonar Law, who is ill in the that a curse of death would descend upon anyone who disturbed the sanctity of the aged sanctuary. In a few days both Gould and his nephew, Frank J. Gould, contracted heavy colds.

Symptoms similar to the strange malady which caused the death of Lord Carnarvon developed in Gould.

When news came that Carnarvon was dead and newspapers began to recall the superstitious "curse of the Pharaohs," Gould was shocked. The American financier is said to have pondered continually over the mystery.

Gould's illness puzzled Europe's most illustrious specialists. The doctors felt sure that worry aggravated Gould's illness. Without worriment over the "curse of the Pharaohs" and the strange death of Lord Carnarvon, Gould might have recovered, the doctors believe.

Gould weighed less than 100 pounds at the end.

THREATS OF WAR ALARM RUSSIANS

Soviet Paper Claims Foes Preparing to Launch Big Offensive

MOSCOW, May 18.—Isvestia, one of the officials newspapers through which the soviet government makes its public announcements, today issued warning that a "military offensive against Russia is possible."

The provinces are pledging their support to Moscow in the event of war. A message from the governments of Turkestan and Tiflis said: "We will use our oil to burn an imperialistic war."

Public opinion believes that the British are seeking to divert the attention of Russia from Turkey.

Threats against Russia come from many sources. Great Britain is threatening a rupture while relations with Turkey have become strained. Menace of hostilities has always existed with Poland, Roumania and France.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 18.—Fearing renewal of hostilities with the Greeks, the commander of the Turkish regular troops at Ismid today ordered that no more leaves of absence be granted.

AMERICAN WOMEN APPEAR NERVOUS

Noted Woman Preacher Says Lack of Repose Forms Striking Note

Miss A. Maude Royden, noted English woman preacher, who recently visited the United States, has written a series of articles for the International News Service, setting forth her impressions of America. The first of these articles is herewith presented. Miss Royden discussing American women.

By MISS A. MAUDE ROYDEN
For International News Service

LONDON, May 18.—Shall I be forgiven if I pass very lightly over those attributes of America's women which are known to all the world? All who know anything know that they are able and efficient, witty and socially gifted; independent and self-reliant, without an attempt at sex antagonism or self-assertion; capable of a delightfully frank and gracious comradeship with men.

Those things are the commonplaces of all of us who have the happiness to number American women among our friends. The American woman is as highly valued for her womanhood as the French woman, and far more genuinely respected as a human being.

I am told that she sometimes presumes on this and is selfish. I can't say. I haven't met all the women in America. All I know is that the ones that I have met are not like that. Perhaps all the others are. But I don't believe it. I am inclined to think it is the criticism of women whose men—to tell the truth—have pre-empted the vice of selfishness and staked out a permanent claim on it. That is how things are in a good many cases in Europe.

U. S. Women Nervous

But having said this, may I very respectfully say something on the other side? American women are increasingly nervous and overstrained. Much as I like to admire them, I was painfully impressed by their absence of repose. They "rush" even more continually than their men do. I am rarely unpunctual and can affirm with certainty that, though I was traveling continuously and in trains whose schedules appeared to have been completely dislocated by the weather, I was never once late at a meeting or other engagement, except when my hostess made me so; yet I was never able to move without being propelled or towed by one or more earnest American women who seemed unable to believe that I could move fast enough. I shot out of lifts, I rushed onto platforms; I flew along passages and corridors, always with the anxious pressure of an arm or hand to hasten me. I could hardly greet a stranger without being pushed in his or her direction first. I thought this must be because my lameness appeared worse than it really is, but when I found my beloved secretary, six feet tall and athletic to boot, also hurled about, I marvelled.

Tiring Conversation

An American woman talks with her whole face, even her whole person. I felt she must be exhausted after ten minutes' conversation. She was not. She was not exhausted after ten hours. At least it seemed not. But I wonder?

Does life not ask too much of the American woman? Almost without help she runs her house, looks after her husband and children, keeps up a high—an extraordinary—standard of cleanliness, order and efficiency in her home. (I believe American women are the cleanest on the earth. Their houses are lovely to be in.) Besides this, she belongs to a literary club, takes an active interest in public affairs. It is a staggering achievement. She must have brains to do it. But her nerves!

ingly presented. A clever encore number was a humorous melody, "Smoking."

Of special interest were "The Lost Chord" (Sullivan-Bartlett), given by Mrs. Virginia Freeman, vocalist, and the club, and "Aux Italiens" (Owen Meredith), given by Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, reader, and Mesdames Cole, Maynard, Meadows, Cotton, Roach, Chappell, Parker and Bullinger.

"The Lost Chord" never grows old and Mrs. Freeman's strong, clear soprano voice, with the harmonized voices of the club as a background brought hearty applause from the listeners.

Glendale people are beginning to realize that in Mrs. A. H. Montgomery they possess a talented reader. Last night she gave the romantic scene reminiscent of an opera production in Paris, and with the operatic airs introduced by Madrigal club members, the sketch was most effective both dramatically and musically. As an encore Mrs. Montgomery gave the negro selection, "When De Folks Am Gone."

Hazel Linkogel Plays

As the time draws near for the departure of Miss Hazel Linkogel east to contest for a musical scholarship, Glendalians are greeting her in her farewell appearances with much enthusiasm. She is, indeed, a talented young violinist with a bright career before her and southern California will watch her progress with interest. Last night she played "The Rosary" (Nevin), "Concerto" (Dr. Beriot), and as an encore "By the Waters of Minnetonka."

Sharing honors with Miss Linkogel last night was George Bingham Cooper, tenor, who sang five delightful numbers. In addition to a powerful, well-trained voice, Mr. Cooper's enunciation is perfect and his stage presence expressive of ease and pleasure in his art. He was accompanied by Mrs. Roberta Young.

He sang "Wiedmung" (Schumann), "Fleur de Vallon" (Godard); "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes" (old English), and as an encore, "If Thou Wert Dead."

Mesdames H. V. Henry, L. E. Richardson, S. Hill, F. B. Maynard, C. M. Taylor and W. A. Kulp, second sopranos.

Mesdames John Cotton, William Kattleman, C. H. Bird, Roberta Young, C. I. Sherwood, A. M. Draper, Helen MacMullin, Charles H. Meadows, H. L. Bullinger and P. E. Maxwell, altos.

Child May Become Ward of State Soon

DENVER, Colo., May 18.—Marriage is primarily the love of one man for one woman and of one woman for one man and when that condition ceases, it may be a very good thing that there should be divorce, because many of them remarry.

This was the statement today of Judge Ben B. Lindsey, famous juvenile jurist, in commenting on Chicago figures, showing one divorce to every five marriages there, during the first three months of 1923.

Judge Lindsey sees in this ratio a great improvement over last year.

"The great difficulty about modern marriage is the problem of the property and the child," he said. "This is becoming so serious that I predict the time will come, as indeed it has already partly arrived, when the state must take care of the child and guarantee its right under the slogan we have adopted in Colorado, that 'no child shall be permitted to suffer, because of the sin, poverty, or ignorance of the parent.'"

Use of betrothal or engagement and wedding rings originated with the Jews.

furthest from the one stairway, are believed to have perished.

Flames Quickly Spread

The flames spread through the dry, wooden building with almost unbelievable speed. Within a few minutes after the explosion, the whole rear portion of the building was blazing high and the flames, fanned by a stiff wind, began to eat into the flooring.

Then the second floor collapsed, and down into that raging inferno of fire and burning embers went all who were left—estimated at about 100 persons.

The first of those who escaped by jumping out of the windows dashed across fields for the nearest farm houses for telephones by which to summon aid. Practically the whole countryside was at the school house, however, and some houses were locked. Telephones are not many anyway in the community. Camden finally was notified and chemical fire apparatus was sent on the run. When it arrived it was too late—the school house was a mass of burning embers, smoking and black—the funeral pyre of half of this little community.

Heart Breaking Scenes

When the firemen arrived they looked upon a scene that almost beggared description. The school house, a mass of ruins, around which stood weeping mothers, frantic fathers and waiting children, looking for their loved ones.

There was a score of persons lying groaning on the ground, suffering from broken limbs and fractures suffered in leaping from the windows.

The darkness was lighted only by the ruddy glow of the smouldering fire, and in the intense heat and amid terrible confusion, the work of finding out who had escaped and who had died continued throughout the night.

Dawn found a wearied blackened crowd of men still working feverishly. At 8 o'clock they had succeeded in pulling seventy-four bodies from the ruins. The work of identification has not been completed because of the confusion and the stunned condition of those who escaped.

Several whole families, however, have been wiped out.

"There was no one to blame," said the chief of police here. "It all happened so quickly and the panic was natural."

All the victims were either graduates, students of the little school or parents and friends.

One man threw his wife bodily through an open window and then leaped after her. She was severely injured and he hurt his legs in the leap.

Crush Is Terrific

"Those nearest the platform pushed those ahead towards the narrow doorway," said Chief of Police E. G. Whitaker. "The jam, of course, became terrific, and then in some unexplained manner, probably because of the jostling and straining, the door became closed, and the people behind it pushed ahead into the door, keeping it closed.

"This left only the windows and they were soon choked. The explosion of the lamp and the overturning of others threw the hall into darkness, and, coupled with the smoke, added terror to the confusion.

"Also, the first explosion had scattered burning oil over a number of people near it and their clothing immediately became a mass of flames. Between trying to fight the flames that were consuming them and trying to get to the doors and windows, it can readily be imagined what a horrible inferno the place was soon turned into."

The Cleveland school community is made up of small farmers and mill operatives and is similar to hundreds of other small communities throughout the south.

ROTARY PROGRAM BY H. S. PUPILS

Vocal and Instrumental Numbers Given by Student Artists

A musical program by Glendale Union High school pupils, in charge of W. E. Hewitt, featured yesterday's Rotary club luncheon in the Citizens' building. Miss Hazel Linkogel favoring the members with a demonstration of her very great talent on the violin, accompanied on the piano by Henry Grace.

Miss Linkogel is shortly to go to Chicago to continue her musical studies under a master, and a benefit concert in her behalf will be given at the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse, next Thursday night, May 24, Mr. Hewitt announced.

Following Miss Linkogel's numbers, which included "Rosary" by Nevin, and a movement from one of Wieniawski's concertos, a mixed quartet from the high school sang "When That I Was a Tiny Boy", followed by an encore.

The quartet comprised Miss Gertrude Heideman, soprano; Miss Winifred Parker, alto; Claude Whitfield, tenor; and Irvin Carver, bass; Miss Catherine Stoft, accompanist.

These pupils, who have been trained by Mrs. Gibson, director of the high school orchestra, proved very popular with the Rotarians, who expressed themselves proud of the high order of local talent thus revealed.

Ex-President Honored

Roy L. Kent, recently succeeded by George B. Karr as president of the Glendale Rotary club, was tendered by W. E. Hewitt a beautiful silver loving cup, mounted on an ebony base, as an expression of the gratitude of the organization "for the faithful and efficient way in which he has performed the services incumbent upon him during his tenure of office."

The cup stands over a foot and a half from the table and has engraved upon its side, between two of its three beautiful handles, the following:

Presented to
ROY L. KENT
Past President
Glendale Rotary Club
1922-1923

Underneath the lettering, exquisitely engraved, appears the emblem of Rotary International.

Speaking from a full heart, in answer to Mr. Hewitt's address of presentation, Mr. Kent told the club he would prize this gift as one of the dearest of his possessions, and that it would always be to him an inspiration to continue in every way to promote the forward movement of Rotary in Glendale.

J. G. Huntley, chairman of the committee in charge of the Haynes Canyon Boy Scout camp-site project, gave a final statement of the status of the movement to date, saying that $6600 had been subscribed of the $8000 needed to complete the escrow, and that the balance will be raised before May 25, which is the date on which purchase must be completed.

Property in Trust

Mr. Kent spoke briefly on the subject, explaining that the seventy-five acres comprising the site are being purchased by the members of the club as individuals and hat the property will be held in trust for them, through the medium of one of the larger trust companies, the Boy Scouts being given the right to use the grounds for a long period.

The plan is to auction off cabin sites in Haynes Canyon, to club members and others, directly after the purchase of the property is completed, in this way cutting down as much as possible the obligation each member will assume.

Cars for Veterans

Automobiles to convey the G. A. R. and W. R. C. in the Decoration Day parade were pledged by twelve members of the club. The cars will gather at Louise and Colorado streets, at 1:30 o'clock, Wednesday, May 30.

President Karr announced that the luncheon meeting of Thursday May 31, will be given over to a thorough consideration of the civic center movement now being advocated.

David G. Crofton introduced as his guest, his brother, John G. Crofton, from St. Louis. George H. Bentley introduced as his guest C. L. Walters, of the Pacific Portland Cement company, a San Franciscan who is planning to make his home in the Southland.

The following were visiting Rotarians: Otto G. Wildey, of the realty firm of Edwards & Wildey; John Bloeser and W. B. Jones of Los Angeles; and S. J. Kring, Chautauqua manager, of Beeville, Texas.

Senate Favors Bill For Industrial Farm

SACRAMENTO, May 18.—The senate has given implied approval to the maintenance of the Sonoma industrial farm for delinquent women by voting to force out of committee the bill of Assemblywoman Eleanor Miller to provide $80,000 for the construction of a new building at the farm. The Miller bill is opposed by the governor and the administration group in the legislature, the governor having reduced the budget bill allowance for the farm to $4,000, following the destruction of the farm buildings by fire.

After passing the assembly Miss Miller's bill was tabled by the senate finance committee. The vote on forcing the bill out of committee was twenty-three ayes to fourteen nays.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—Gladywell G. Richardson, sailor, confessed slayer of Rabbi Alfred G. Lafee, appeared before Judge Roche late yesterday and entered a plea of not guilty to the charge of murder. GOVERNOR NAMES U. OF C. REGENTS

Dr. J. R. Haynes, Appointee Of Gov. Stephens, Replaced by Bowles

SACRAMENTO, May 18.—Governor Richardson has made two reappointments and one new appointment to the board of regents of the University of California, one of them supplanting the appointment of Dr. John R. Haynes, prominent figure in public affairs in Southern California.

Dr. Haynes was appointed by former Governor Stephens just before going out of office, but his name was never submitted to the senate for approval. On the strength of this technicality Governor Richardson holds that Dr. Haynes' appointment is invalid.

The governor issued the following statement regarding his appointments:

"Governor Richardson announced the reappointment of Margaret Sartori and P. E. Bowles, as regents of the University of California, and the appointment of Alden Anderson, president of the Capital National bank, to succeed Rudolph Taussig, deceased. In regard to these appointments the governor said:

"Mrs. Sartori, of Los Angeles, has proved herself a valuable member of the board and should be continued. P. E. Bowles, of Oakland, has done long and faithful service on the board. His wide interests in agriculture and in financial affairs, besides his experience, make him a particularly desirable man. Alden Anderson, of Sacramento, has been engaged in agricultural and horticultural pursuits all his life and will be of value on the board.

"Governor Stephens appointed Dr. John R. Haynes as a regent but did not submit his name to the senate for confirmation, hence I have taken the position that this appointment is a nullity and have restored Mr. Bowles, whom the former governor attempted to supersede on the board."

FRENCH TO ADOPT WORD 'INTERVIEW'

'So Ugly,' Says One Writer; Doesn't Think Ordinary Folk Can Say It

By ALICE LANGELIER
For International News Service

PARIS, May 17.—After much discussion the members of the French Academy have decided to incorporate in their next dictionary the English word "interview," used in the newspaper sense which means a conversation held with a view to publication in the press.

There have been heated disputes over the affair.

"Ah, it is so ugly," writes Marcel Boulenger in Comaedia, "a barbarous word when interpolated in the middle of a fine French phrase. And, besides, it is too difficult for the Frenchman to pronounce. The journalists may succeed well enough, but ask your butcher, baker or janitor to pronounce it correctly. He will mumble something like 'intervious,' 'intervieve,' just as he says 'Neveton' for Newton and 'tramvaie' for tramway."

Cap'n Nat's Light

TODAY'S SHORT STORY, BY Ad Schuster

"So if you wish me to marry you, Frank, you'll have to wait."

There were tears in Polly Winn's eyes, but Frank could see she was determined, nevertheless.

"Father insisted I go through school and it has meant sacrifice to him. I wonder if you can know what it is to be a lighthouse keeper, never seeing a soul except the men on the supply ship who call twice a month. Father is growing old and he is all alone. His life is his work, and his pride the fact his light has never failed. There is no telling how many lives he has saved. It is enough the signal keeps burning."

"But you—it will be like going to a desert island. The merriest girl in college!" Frank Steele's troubled look gave way to one of admiration. "You're doing the big thing, though, and of course I will wait. Perhaps in a year you can persuade him to retire. Surely he has served long enough."

So Polly Winn took passage on the blunt little steamer which carried the supplies to the lighthouse, and brought companionship and cheer to Cap'n Nat.

"Maybe you'll think it's pretty lonely for a spell," he said, "after your years in college. Maybe you will forget how you used to play on the rocks and hunt gull's eggs, perhaps you've forgotten how to help me polish the lenses and reflector."

"Maybe you are building a grievance," laughed Polly. "Of course I have not forgotten. And the sunsets, with the spars of a barkentine showing black against the gold," she pointed to the west, "Where else could one see that?"

Cap'n Nat smiled. "Where else? There is no lap-lap of water to sing you to sleep in town, no breakers jumping out of the blue and putting lace ruffs on all the rocks." The old man's gaze was on the ocean.

"And yet," he confessed, "I am getting well along and, if it were not for the lights, I might think of going ashore. I don't like the idea of any new man tending these lights. They have tricks, you know, and something might happen."

Twice a month, letters from Frank. Polly was brave and cheerful, but Cap'n Nat read the signs. He wondered if he were doing right, and Polly hoped. Never before had he intimated he might consider going ashore. That much was victory.

"It was only on my account he said it," she decided. "It would break his heart to leave those lights."

The arrival of the supply ship next time was more than ever of an event, for on board were two extra men and a shipment of mysterious apparatus. Cap'n Nat was shown a paper ordering them to work in the lighthouse making changes. There were words here the old man could not understand. Offended, he stood aloof and watched while they installed a dynamo and motor and made endless trips up and down the tower.

"If Uncle Sam isn't satisfied with the way I tend that light," Cap'n Nat voiced his protest to the wind, "I can go ashore. Then where will he be?"

One day the men finished. They would go on the boat in the morning.

"Won't do any harm to tell you, Cap'n," one of them said, "but you won't have to tend those lights any more. We've been installing the latest invention. Science is going to turn on the lights every afternoon and keep them going."

Cap'n Nat listened in silence as the men explained the apparatus. He watched them install the new light and admitted grudgingly it was stronger than the old. There was nothing for him to do now. They had turned the switch which took away his job.

"A doofunny of wires and springs is going to do a man's work," he said, and he seemed to grow older as he said it. "They might of waited at least until I got ready to quit."

When the ship came to call for the men it brought with it the release of the old keeper. The man who wrote that release knew the traditions of the service and the character of its men, for he included this paragraph:

"The Bureau recognizes the services of Captain Nathaniel Winn and has decided to honor him by making his lighthouse the first to adopt the new system. The station remains under Captain Winn's charge, although he will not be required to make it his residence. Once a month he will visit the lighthouse to see that everything is in order. The salary is to continue until he retires."

Cap'n Nat climbed the tower to take another look at the "doofunny." He found Polly there. She was wondering if this would break her father's heart, whether she were guilty in feeling so glad. He showed her the letter.

"That there contraption," said Cap'n Nat, "is what I call a triumph of ingenooity. Won't be long before all the lighthouses in the world are patterned after mine!"

Frank was on the pier to meet them.

SHE'S YOUNGEST GRANDMOTHER

Chicago Woman Holds Record, It Is Believed

Mrs. Kunckel and Mrs. Mary Carey & daughter

Mrs. Margaret Kunckel, now 33 years old, a Chicago woman, is believed to be America's youngest grandmother. She married when she was 16, and her daughter, Mary, was born when she was 17. This daughter eloped when she was 14 and presented her mother with a grandchild at 16. That was two years ago, and Mrs. Kunckel was a grandmother at 31. Mrs. Kunckel has two other children, Virginia, 7, and Helen, 4. She believes in early marriages, she declares.

OR CONFESSIONS OF A BABY
When Babies Should Not Be Nursed
CHAPTER LX

Dear Mamas:

Last week I told you what my mama ate to make such good milk for me so that it makes me grow so well and be so happy. Doctor thinks that I have impressed you sufficiently with the importance of the mamas' diet being correct to make good milk for us babies.

I feel so sorry for the poor little babies that cannot have their mama's milk, and today doctor wants me to tell you of the time babies should not nurse. Because while nursing him is the most important thing a mama can do for her baby's welfare, there are times when she must not.

First—If another little brother or sister is coming, it is usually too great a strain on the mama to be nourishing the baby to come and the present baby.

Second—Certain Diseases: If the mama has tuberculosis she should not nurse the baby, because she may transmit the disease to her baby, and it is too great a strain on her also. Sometimes when the mama has tuberculosis and there is no other mama from whom some human milk can be obtained for the baby, physicians advise the mama's milk be used for the first two or three weeks, especially if it is a weak baby. In this case the baby should not nurse directly, but the mama's milk should be expressed from her breast, then boiled and given to the baby in a bottle.

If the mama is suffering from any grave constitutional disease, such as bad heart trouble, diabetes, inflammation of the kidneys, exopthalmic goiter, cancer, epilepsy and the insanities, it is harmful for her and her baby to nurse.

If the mama gets an acute infection, such as pneumonia or scarlet fever, influenza or diphtheria, or has an abscess of the breast, the nursing should be discontinued until she is better. If the mama gets whooping cough, the nursing should be discontinued until she stops coughing, because whooping cough is very dangerous to young babies. In these cases, if the milk is expressed from the breast regularly it does not dry up.

When babies do not get along well on mama's milk even when she is apparently healthy, the reason is probably due to some error in the mama's living. Her diet may be wrong, or she may have too little exercise, or sleep, or she may be under some mental strain. Babies will not do well either when fed irregularly or too often.

Sometimes nursing babies get too much milk if they stay at the breast as long as twenty minutes, the time that is usually advised. In a series of babies that were weighed during the nursing period it was found that many of them got all the milk that was needed in much less time than twenty minutes. In these cases the mama's milk was abundant and flowed freely, and if the baby continued nursing for twenty minutes it would often vomit and have indigestion.

If your baby has indigestion and is vomiting, mamas, and you are doing everything that is right to make your milk good, it may be possible that you are nursing too long.

Dennett states that the proper length of time to nurse a baby is until it stops of its own accord or perhaps goes to sleep, and if it does not receive enough at one feeding it will make up for it at the next meal. But don't feed between the regular feeding periods, mamas. We should be awakened to nurse at these regular periods. We'll go to sleep again after nursing if we need to.

After the mama is able to be up, we should be held half sitting up in our mama's arms, and not lying down.

'Scuse me now, dears. I feel the need of nourishment myself, and my time has come.

Au revoir.

The wise housekeeper starts her canning early in the summer. For few of us have time to give whole days to canning, and we have therefore learned the value of putting up a jar here and a jar there—snatching these few moments for canning at odd times throughout a long season.

So right now is the time to sit down and consider the matter. How many jars of vegetables do you need to serve your family next winter? How many glasses of jelly? How large a quantity of pickles, and of which varieties? These questions can be answered only by the records of the past winter, which show the adequacy of the supply of jars that were put up last summer.

I know of one housekeeper who declares that she will never again put up anything in the line of pickles except picalilli and chili sauce. "What's the use?" she says. "Here, at the end of spring, I find that I still have in my preserve closet pickled gherkins, pickled walnuts, pickled beets, pickled pears and pickled onions! My family kept demanding picalilli and chili sauce. They wouldn't eat the other pickles. They said nothing else tasted so well with cold meats and baked beans. So why should I waste my time putting up other kinds?"

This is efficiency. It is sensible to put up only what you know will be eaten. Every family has its favorite jams and pickles. If you have a grapevine in your back yard and your family does not like grape jelly, grapejuice or pickled grapes, you can trade your surplus grapes for some vegetable in a neighbor's garden—for something that your family will eat.

The young housekeeper who has never before done any canning should at this time begin collecting the following things: A wire rack to go inside her wash boiler (to hold the glass jars), plenty of clean, new cheesecloth (used in draining and blanching vegetables), plenty of new rubbers (the glass jars themselves may be bought at auction or second hand, and sterilized by being boiled in water for an hour—but rubbers must be absolutely new), some jelly glasses and bottles for pickles as well as the glass quart and pint jars, a package of paraffine wax, a scales, a serving kettle, and a 5-cent notebook to hang on the door of the preserving closet so that each jar may be entered in it (date of canning it, as well as contents of jar), when put in the closet.

Each week, from now on, I shall publish directions for canning the various fruits and vegetables in season.

Tomorrow—Hints from Reader Friends.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman in care of the "Efficient Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. BEAUTY CHATS

by EDNA KENT FORBES

VALUABLE SOAPS

Many women who have enough time to make their own beauty preparations and not enough money to purchase the dainty things they desire will find the following formula for soap well worth their trouble to try:

Rose Complexion Soap

White castile soap, one and one-half pounds; white curd soap, one pound; rain water, one-sixth of a pint. Melt these very slowly together, then add one-eighth ounce of powdered vermilion. As the mixture cools stir in one dram oil of geranium, one dram oil of bergamot, one dram otto of roses. Let it cool and set in a thick slab and cut into pieces.

There is a famous old-fashioned formula for soap of which it is said that at one time it was used in all the royal courts of Europe. It is not hard to make. One quart of olive oil of fine quality is put into a large porcelain kettle and brought to the boiling point, then three pints of boiling water, in which four tablespoonfuls of refined potash have been previously dissolved, are poured slowly into it. This mixture is constantly stirred as it boils until it thickens like jelly, when it is cooled on a marble slab or plate. The stirring, by the way, should be done with a wooden spoon. When the soap is partly cool and before it hardens, perfume with two drams of oil of lavender and two drams oil of clove.

I would suggest that this mixture be boiled only long enough for it to thicken slightly, when it is poured on a plate and kept in bottles as a liquid soap.

A variation is to add, instead of three pints of boiling water, three pints of thin oatmeal gruel. The soap will be deliciously smooth and will bleach the skin as well as cleanse it. Oil of bitter almonds makes a nice perfume for it.

Miss E. D. M.—I shall be glad to mail you my formula for a tonic for the lashes which I think will build them up again. I do not know what is in the preparation you mention.

C. Virginia—Consult the doctor about this high color and the tendency to breaking out in rashes. A change in your diet may be all that you need to correct this condition, but you should know what causes the trouble first.

Elaine—A girl whose eyes, hair and skin are all dark will look best in all the rich, deep colors such as those of the autumn.

Oatmeal Soap Bleaches the Skin

Lora H.—A mixture of ammonia and peroxide will bleach the superfluous hair, and it has been known to weaken the growth so that it disappears.

Tomorrow—Other Dry Shampoos

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Side Talks

by Ruth Cameron

THE LOVE PIG

"Love that asketh love again
Finds the barter naught but pain;
Love that giveth in full store
Aye receives as much and more."

I know a woman who is considered by most of the people who know her as extraordinarily selfish.

And so she is in many ways.

But, on the other hand, she is extraordinarily selfish about one thing. You would never guess what it is. Not clothes, nor jewelry, nor any material possession. Not even about having her own way. The one thing this woman is selfish about is love. She is absolutely greedy about getting all the love she can.

You don't call that selfishness? You call it a commendable ambition?

I don't agree with you. I think it is possible to cause almost as much unhappiness by love greediness as by any other kind. And I think this woman does.

Always Love Greedy

It has always been so with her. If she had a friend she wanted all of that friend. She hated to hear that friend speak cordially of other friends; she hated to have her have a good time with other friends. She wanted not only to be first in her friend's affections but second and third and fourth as well.

In her family it was the same. She had a favorite sister and she did all she could to cut that favorite sister off from the rest of the family and have her for her own. I don't think she realized that she was doing it. But she loved her sister and was eager to do everything she could for her and in return she wanted an extraordinary amount of affection. And to attain this end she subconsciously (I know she would never have done it consciously) tried to make the sister feel that the other sisters did not care as much for her, and that she should not care so much for them.

She Would Think You Insane

She is married now and, as is inevitable, her love greediness has intensified. She concentrates on her husband. She will do anything for him, sacrifice herself in any way for him, and she doesn't ask self-sacrifice in return—in fact, she will not permit it—but she wants a prodigious amount of love.

She wants not only the deep, quiet affection of a devoted husband, she wants constant expressions of it. She wants to minimize his other contacts. She wants once more, not only to be first in his affections, but to be everything.

If you should tell her she was selfish, she would think you were insane. "Why, I would do anything on earth for my husband," she would say, her eyes filling with tears. "Selfish! Well, I've never been considered that."

And she would probably be your enemy for life.

But isn't it true?

A Drain and a Stain

Even if her husband does manage to live up to her expectations, will it not mean a cramping and narrowing of his life? And if he is able to give the emotional intensity she demands, will it not be a drain on him?

Don't you love that verse in the Bible that Mrs. Browning quotes: "He giveth his beloved sleep."

Love ought to give and receive peace and content, not restlessness and emotional exactions.

Love greediness causes unhappiness both to the one who makes and the one who receives the demand. To give all the love you can is a beautiful thing. To demand all the love you can get, and to be constantly fearing you are getting enough, is very unbeautiful.

Owing to her very serious illness, Ruth Cameron has been unable to write her daily Talks this week. We are, therefore, printing six of the talks which have appeared during the last year and for which many readers have written to Miss Cameron for copies, in the hope that all of her readers as well as those who have asked for them, will enjoy seeing them again.—The Editor.

HELP CELEBRATE DECORATION DAY

Kiwanis to Participate in Imposing Ceremonies At Atlanta, Ga.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 18.—The first official celebration of National Decoration Day ever held in a large way in Atlanta will be that on May 30 of this year, when visiting Kiwanians attending the seventh international convention of Kiwanians, will join various patriotic bodies of Atlanta and the South in an imposing ceremony at Piedmont park.

The southern states have just observed their own Memorial Day, dedicated to the soldiers who fought for the "Lost Cause," but southern Kiwanians, and virtually every civic organization, have joined enthusiastically in the opportunity to pay a tribute to the memory of the men who wore the blue, and to the heroes of the World war. Representatives of every state in the union will share in the exercises, and Kiwanians from Canada will bring wreaths to adorn the monuments to American soldiers.

The Kiwanis international convention, it is now assured, will be the largest ever held by the organization. More than 3000 registrations having been recorded a month in advance of the opening date, May 28. Twelve special trains, including one from the Pacific coast and another from Canada, are scheduled to bear delegates and visitors. Virtually all of the thousand Kiwanis clubs will be represented.

tended, in many cases more attending here than in some of the larger city associations. Never less than seventy are present at these meetings and the interest is sustained and enthusiastic.

Favors Rental System

The Tujunga Valley Realty Board met as usual Monday evening at the Cozy Cup Inn. Routine business consumed the larger part of the evening. The plans for widening the highway came in for much discussion, but nothing definite was done on this.

Major P. J. Blake offered a resolution to the effect that members of the board adopt a rental system, using the card index and these cards to bear the signature of the person listing the property for rental and to show who holds the key and whether or not the back water and light service bills have been paid. The cards would also show whether the tenant or the owner was to pay the water and lights.

Next Monday evening this body will be host to the realty boards from La Crescenta, La Canada, Montrose and Glendale at dinner. After the dinner they will entertain with a theatre party at the Garden of the Moon, where the Mission players will present the Chauve Souris, a Russian play adaptation.

The Henry Brothers' circus that comes through the valley about this time every year played in Tujunga Wednesday night. Their show includes the ever popular clowns, trained dogs and ponies, flying trapeze acts, wild (?) animals, strange birds, contortionist acts, aerial acts and slack wire artist.

Annteen Fischer entertained a number of her little friends at a movie party at the Tujunga Valley theatre last week in celebration of her thirteenth birthday.

Sunland P.-T. A. Meets

The Sunland Parent-Teachers' association held their first regular election of officers Tuesday afternoon, May 15, at the schoolhouse. This association has been organized less than a year and has accomplished a great many improvements for the welfare of the children of the Sunland school.

The following officers were elected: Mrs. Kevane will succeed Mrs. Viola Reed as president; Mrs. J. E. Crews was elected first vice-president; Mrs. Jessie Kimpel, second vice-president; recording secretary, Jeanne Sanchez; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Buck; treasurer, Mrs. Besson, and historian, Mrs. Springer.

Plans were discussed for giving the graduating class a party of some kind about a week before the graduation, the date to be set later. One thing was definitely settled that will delight the youngsters, and that was the decision to have plenty of ice cream and cake on hand.

The regular business meeting of the Tujunga Woman's club was held at the Community church on Thursday, May 10. After the business sesion the subject of "Child Welfare" was taken up, as announced by the president, Mrs. Guy Barry.

Mrs. Sweet sang two solos, accompanied by Mrs. Schrock. Mrs. Maud Johnson read a paper on the importance of play as a factor in education.

Mrs. Barry then introduced Mrs. Gregg, of Whittier, who has charge of the child welfare work for the W. C. T. U. Her address was very interesting and instructive and greatly appreciated by the ladies.

This meeting was well attended. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Mark White on Thursday afternoon, May 24th.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Barry spent the week end at Big Bear Lake, where Mr. Barry maintains a photograph studio, which he established there more than ten years ago. They combined a business and pleasure trip and made arrangements to go there some time in June to be gone for some time.

A report is in circulation to the effect that the Monte Vista lodge at Sunland, the home for orphans, is to be turned over to the county authorities. Officials in charge will neither confirm nor deny this report, but it is known that the Community Service of Los Angeles, which has heretofore had this home under its wing, has made the offer to the Board of Supervisors. They made this offer last Monday, May 14, at a meeting in Los Angeles and stated at the time that the property is valued at $25,000, including some good buildings and two acres of ground on which there has been built playground features for the youngsters.

There is, however, a mortgage of $4000 on the property and should the county take over the home they would, of necessity, have to assume this mortgage, and therein lies the "if."

Fire Sweeps Canyon

A fire of unknown origin got started about two and a half miles up Big Tujunga Canyon last Thursday and burned off all of what is known as "Hell's Half-Acre" before it could be brought under control. A cabin located on the property was completely destroyed, but no other damage was reported, according to Leo L. Lang, who rushed a gang of men to the scene as soon as the report came in. It was about 6:30 in the afternoon and may have been the result of a gypsy camp fire, as there are several bands of these wanderers in the valley at the present.

These gypsies travel in autos now and have the nerve of the proverbial "Old Man Nerve Himself." They waylay travelers and endeavor to tell their fortunes for some silver and their favorite stunt is to bless their listener's roll of money. This has been worked in Los Angeles recently, to the sorrow of several well-known business men who fell into the trap in their own stores. In all cases the large part of the roll remains to "bless" the gypsy after it has been poohbahed over. They are very adept at this trick and the victim seldom notices the transfer of part of his roll. It is the better part of good judgment to keep the roll in the pocket if the owner wishes it to be a blessing to him.

EAGLE ROCK

L. A. FIRE FORCE TAKE EAGLE ROCK

Chief R. J. Scott and Some Of Aids Form Unit; Facts About Phones

The first official step in consolidation of Eagle Rock with Los Angeles was taken at the city hall, on East Colorado street, yesterday afternoon, May 17, when the equipment and quarters of the local fire department were merged with the Los Angeles fire-fighting plant.

In charge of the Eagle Rock unit, from now on an integral part of the larger system, is Lieut. E. W. Welty, who states that a staff of fourteen firemen will be maintained, operating two seven-men shifts.

Chief R. J. Scott and Battalion Chief Charles Casey of the Los Angeles Fire Department, together with Edward Henry, superintendent of machinery, were present yesterday afternoon, in charge of the ceremonies that marked the transfer.

Claud S. Brandle, Eagle Rock street superintendent and city marshall, previous head of the local department, represented this section in the proceedings.

Lieutenant Welty reports that the tentative survey disclosed marked deficiencies in Eagle Rock's fire-fighting equipment and facilities, according to metropolitan standards, and that an official survey will be made in the near future, to determine just what must be done to bring the department to a point of efficiency where it offers adequate protection to the property of the community.

Mains Deficient

"We found the hose not to be dependable," Lieutenant Welty said, "and will send out 1,000 feet from Los Angeles at once. We also found the triple combination truck to be below standard, but will utilize this for the present.

"We found, on inspection of the water supply, that the pressure is adequate but the mains are deficient both in number and in size.

"The quarters we found to be too small for the staff of men we will maintain, so we propose to make an addition to the building at once, the funds being available through the recent $2,500,000 bond issue voted by Los Angeles.

"Meanwhile, we will occupy a portion of the city jail, which has been made available for our use by the police department, without the preliminary of an arrest!"

Lieutenant Welty furnished other samples of a ready sense of humor, and showed himself to be of a pleasing personality that is likely to make him very popular as chief of Eagle Rock's fire department.

He stated that he and his men look forward with real pleasure to their life in this community.

Church Concert

The First Congregational church choir of Los Angeles, assisted by the Apollo quartette, under the direction of John Smallman, with Lorna Gregg accompaniste, will give a concert of sacred and secular music tonight at 8:15 o'clock at the Women's Twentieth Century clubhouse, under the auspices of the Congregational church of Eagle Rock.

Frank Colby, in the Pacific Coast Musician, says of the First Congregational church choir:

"It is not often that an amateur organization can essay an operatic performance with the ease and nonchalance of professionals, and in some respects outdo even some of the best of the latter. Musically, the strongest feature of their performance is the singing of the choruses, whether of men, women or full ensemble."

"Clarence," the Booth Tarkington comedy produced last night by the Eagle Rock Community Players, at the Central school auditorium, under the direction of Mrs. Elgie Lowry Fischer, will be given again tonight, with a number of changes in the cast, to allow added talent an opportunity for expression. The curtain will rise at 8 o'clock.

Changes In Phone Numbers

Manager B. G. Wright of the Southern California Telephone Company makes the following statement in regard to changes in Eagle Rock service, following consolidation:

"In the expansion of the telephone system of Los Angeles to adequately serve the present and future requirements of this rapidly growing metropolitan community, we are operating under a huge construction program—in excess of $14,000,000 to be spent this year alone—and all plant added incorporates the latest developments in equipment and methods of operation.

"To make effective this extended service, additional equipment is being installed throughout the system so that the capacity of the present plant may be enlarged to metropolitan requirements. This expansion incorporates also a simplified method of operation by which the service from automatic to manual telephones will be handled on a direct basis instead of the present transfer method, and establishes an expanded and permanent numbering plan for the system as a whole. To accomplish this it is necessary that all telephone numbers consist of a prefix and four numerals.

Explains System

"Telephone numbers, therefore, below 1000 will be changed to four-digit numbers by preceding them with one or two zeros, depending upon the number of digits in the present number; for example, Garvanza 134 will become Garvanza 0134, and Garvanza 86 will become Garvanza 0086. Our representative will accordingly call in the near future and change the number on your telephone. The new number will appear in the next issue of our directory to be delivered in August. In the meantime, calls received for your old number will be completed to your new number without interruption or delay.

"Zeros prefixed in this way become a necessary part of the telephone number. It is important, therefore, that every one who uses your telephone include the zeros when giving your number to anyone, or when calling other numbers which include initial zeros. The zeros should be pronounced 'oh' when called; for example, Garvanza 0134 should be given as 'Garvanza oh-one-three-four.'

"We will appreciate your helpful co-operation in the full and correct use of this and other new developments which are being provided in the expansion of the Los Angeles telephone system on a great metropolitan basis."

BURBANK

PIONEER CALLED BY GRIM REAPER

Resident of Burbank Since 1888 Answers Summons Friday, May 11

The death of Almond Samuel David Fulton, at his home, 1171 Providencia avenue, Friday, May 11, at the age of 70 years, marks the passage of one of Burbank's oldest pioneers, the deceased having resided in this city since 1888.

Death was caused by hardening of the arteries, and came about after an illness of but four days. Had he lived until May 17, or not quite a week longer, Mr. Fulton would have celebrated his seventy-first birthday.

He is survived by his wife, who has been quite ill for some time, and was prostrated by the shock of her husband's death. She is said to be bearing up well at the present time, however, according to latest reports from her bedside.

Besides his widow, the deceased leaves four brothers and two sisters: Dr. G. H. Fulton, Malden, Mass.; S. B. Fulton, Huntington, W. Va.; Thomas and James Fulton of Bass River, Nova Scotia; Mrs. Robert Bentley and Miss Aggie Fulton of Boston, Mass.

In addition there survive Mrs. T. E. McGuire, Burbank, and Mrs. James Freeley, Red Bluff, nieces, and W. G. Fulton, Las Vegas, a nephew. The latter attended the funeral, which was held in the Presbyterian church, Monday afternoon May 14, services in charge of the local Masonic lodge, of which the deceased was a charter member and past worthy master.

Interment was in Grand View cemetery, Glendale, the impressive ritualistic ceremonies of the Masons being carried out at the grave. A. C. Fillbach was the undertaker in charge.

Born in Canada

Almond Samuel David Fulton was born in Colchester county, Nova Scotia, May 17, 1852, the son of George and Margaret Fulton and the eldest grandson of Rev. John Brown, a graduate of the Glasgow, Scotland, university, who same to Nova Scotia in 1795, as a missionary.

During his youth Mr. Fulton was associated with his father in the Dominion Chair company.

In 1872 he married Miss Susan Fulton. A few years later he became interested in politics and served for several years as a councilman from Colchester county, as well as county magistrate.

In 1887 he and his wife came to California, settling a year later in Burbank, where they have since resided, Mr. Fulton becoming an elder in the Presbyterian church, a position he had held in Canada.

The deceased was a cabinet maker by trade, but had not been active at the trade for the past few years. He numbered many friends in the community and had considerable to do with building the modern Burbank. His loss is mourned by many.

Frederick Warde, the great actof of the Mission Play, spoke yesterday afternoon at the Burbank high school, on "Fifty Years of Make Believe," delighting a large audience with his reminiscence of a lifetime on the stage.

Duncan Forsyth has been elected president of the reorganized school board, and Mrs. Homer Jones has been elected secretary.

The local post of the American Legion met Tuesday night, May 15, in the offices of Dr. Yale, in the State Bank building. Announcement is made that headquarters of this organization will be removed in a few days to the naw armory, where legionnaires will gather from now on.

Drunk Plea Fails to Win Burglar Freedom

LOS ANGELES, May 18.—An attempt to show he was too intoxicated to carry out a burglary with which he was charged failed to win for him an acquittal, when Vernon Kendall was tried in Judge Reeve's court.

Kendall was charged with the burglary of the home of W. S. Williamson in South Wilton place, from which he was said to have taken $700 worth of household effects. In his defense Kendall attempted to show that at the time the robbery took place he was in such an intoxicated state that he was utterly helpless and it would have been a physical impossibility for him to commit a burglary. Kendall now faces from one to fifteen years' imprisonment in San Quentin.

HARDING SCORES FACTIONS IN U. S.

Honesty In Leadership Is Sought by President In Address

By KENNETH W. CLARK
For International News Service

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Standing before the statue of Alexander Hamilton, which he had just unveiled, President Harding yesterday afternoon uttered a plea for the erasure of factionalism in the United States, which, he asserted, is developing now as never before in this country.

Recalling Hamilton's definition of factions as a body of men "united by some common impulse of passion adverse to the rights of other citizens," the president said:

"Can any student of our times in America, or the world, doubt for a moment that factionalism is developing as never before?

"We have our factions which seek to promote this or that interest without regard to the relationship of others, and without regard for the common weal. We have the factions of hatred and prejudice and violence. We have our coalitions which would invade the constitutional rights of others or subvert the constitution itself. We have our factions challenging both civil and religious liberty, and without them both being made everlastingly secure there can be no real human liberty. We have the fatal factionalism which contemplates obstruction to the execution of laws.

"No nation will survive where this factionalism is endured."

President Harding coupled with his denunciation of factionalism another plea—for more honesty of leadership in public affairs—which he said Hamilton had to a degree possessed by few men today.

Home Boycott Kills Sugar Trade, Claim

WASHINGTON, May 18.—While the government has been balked temporarily in its fight against speculation responsible for soaring sugar prices, the housewives' boycott is having highly beneficial effect on the situation, according to reports to the Department of Justice.

Acting Attorney General Seymour, who has personally pressed the injunction suit against the exchange, announced today that his observations of the activities on the Sugar Exchange showed that the market was not moving — that it is "absolutely stagnant."

There seems to be no desire either to sell or buy. Refined sugar is piling up because shipping orders are withheld on old contracts.

ROLLER BEARINGS

After experimenting with several kinds of roller bearings for car wheels, an English railroad has decided that one of the chain link type is best suited to that work.

CIVIC SUBJECTS LUNCHEON TOPIC

Paving of Glendale Avenue to Be Authorized by Council Shortly

The Glendale Advancement association met yesterday noon at 201 East Harvard street and discussed a number of matters of civic interest.

City Engineer Ben F. Dupuy was a guest at the luncheon. He was called upon to express his opinion in regard to a number of projects in which those present were especially interested.

In regard to the paving of Glendale avenue, Charles F. Stuart of 638 East Broadway reported that the largest petition had been presented to the City Council in behalf of Warrenite Brothers bitulithic paving although smaller petitions had been presented in behalf of concrete and National paving.

"We will have everything ready so the council can pass the resolution of intention by the thirty-first of this month," reported Mr. Dupuy. "If everything goes along without any protests, we will be able to award the contract in about sixty days."

Branch Postoffice Needed

The necessity of obtaining a branch postoffice for the vicinity of Glendale avenue and Broadway was brought up again by Mr. Stuart. He stated that two communications to the post office department in regard to the subject had not been answered. He asserted that he has been delaying some remodeling in the interior of the Glendale Pharmacy in order to ascertain whether or not Uncle Sam wished to use any of the space.

Dr. Jessie Russell of 208 South Brand boulevard expressed her opinion that the committee evidently had not gotten much support from Congressman Walter Lineberger. She suggested that the committee should take the matter up with Senator Samuel Shortridge and newly-elected Congressman John D. Fredericks, both of whom she stated are now in Los Angeles.

Upon motion of S. C. Kinch of 328 North Brand boulevard, Dr. Russell was added to the postoffice committee. The question of its membership came up next. It was reported that C. E. Stanley of 108 North Everett street, chairman of the committee, is ill and its other members too busy to serve upon it. Therefore, upon motion of Dr. Russell, Mr. Kinch and Mr. Stuart were added.

More Street Lights

The five-light ornamental standards on East Broadway probably will be extended eastward in the opinion of Mr. Kinch. He stated that interested property owners seemed unwilling to have those already in service replaced with any other type on account of the expense. Although he said that these lights are not efficient as they waste a large part of the illumination, he asserted that it is very desirable that the entire length of East Broadway should be lighted uniformly.

Rounding the corners of Geneva and Glendale avenue at California avenue in order to provide better connection between Glendale avenue and the new bridge to be built across the wash at Geneva street was discussed briefly. A map showing this improvement was exhibited by Mr. Dupuy. He stated that all of the property involved belonged to the Union Pacific Railway company. He suggested that a committee should ascertain its attitude before proceeding further.

"The question of cost is a matter that should be taken up with the Union Pacific," he remarked. "Of course, they have a legal force that could keep it in the courts indefinitely if they were so disposed. If the matter goes to condemnation proceedings, the railroad company will have a great deal to say about it."

Strikers Prepare to Battle City's Laws

LOS ANGELES, May 18.—A battle against city ordinances, under which they were arrested, was apparent when 300 striking longshoremen and asserted I. W. W.'s, taken in police roundups at the harbor, who, when arraigned in justice court today, denied charges of obstructing traffic and asked jury trials.

During the day forty of the alleged radicals were arraigned, each pleading not guilty. The men were offered bail at $100 each, but many of them asked to be kept in jail. The first of the trials were set for June 1.

American Consul at Vladivostok Departs

WASHINGTON, May 18.—In accordance with the demand of the Far Eastern republic, S. Pickney Tuck, American consul at Vladivostok, has left for Tokio, the state department has announced. He had been ordered to get out of the city before May 20.

Although state department officials declined to discuss the expulsion of the American diplomatic representative from the Far Eastern republic, this government is understood to regard the incident as an unfriendly act.

TRIBUTE TO PRUNES

SANTA ROSA, May 17.—A parade of 5000 Sonoma county school children, ushered in the first of four days of activities which will jointly celebrate "Sonoma county's annual prune festival and the golden jubilee of Luther Burbank, plant wizard, as a resident of Santa Rosa."

ATLANTA, Ga., May 18.—Tender pastel shades of green spread gently over the shower freshened woodlands. Poignantly joyful notes cleave the fragrant air as the thrush swells his throat in an ecstasy of song. Faint and far away, a tendril of smoke rises lazily and fades into the mist that caresses the distant branches.

Down the soft breeze steals the pungent aroma of corn mash. Spring has returned to the moonshine hills.

All Nature seems rejoicing. So are the corn whiskey distillers. Rigors of winter are past. Demand for moonshine apparently is on the increase. Law enforcement agencies are crippled by lack of funds and personnel. It bids fair to be the moonshiners' most prosperous year.

Spring is a welcome season. The warmth on the breeze means quicker fermentation of the mash that is the first step in the production of the white and fiery beverage. The tender greenery mantling the hills means greater security for the concealed hills. Showers of April have passed and dry firwood for distilling is easier to find.

Quick to take advantage of nature's conspiracy with them, along with increased demands and no larger dry enforcement ranks than were insufficient in the dull winter days, the moonshiners of the Georgia hills are preparing for a record output.

Many mountain families which have been on incomes of from $5 to $10 a week during the winter expect to see that sum multiplied many times before summer is over. If the totals were cast over the south's moonshine belt, where production of corn liquor was a traditional boast long ere prohibition, the figures would be enormous. Many dollars will find their devious ways to the hills and thousands of gallons of "corn biddy" will trickle back from the cool coves to the towns and cities. Trickle? Nay, gush.

Of course, preparations for the vernal season are not confined entirely to the ranks of the illicit. The raiders also are tightening their gun belts and preparing for a busy season. The battle of wits and bullets between county, state and federal authorities and the makers of moonshine will soon be raging and likely to last until the fall corn crop is harvested.

Corn harvest here may be figured in bushels, or, as in Jeff Davis county, Georgia:

"What d'y'reckon the cawn crop on yo' land, Clem?"

"'Bout thu'ty gallons th' acre."

It is a serious business on both sides. Many will be slain, wounded and arrested, but the torrent of whiskey is almost certain to flow undisturbed.

The resumption of full blast activities will have the tendency to reduce prices, as well as swell gross revenues. At the still the better grades of "biddy" bring $6 to $10 a gallon. When retailed $2 or $3 are added to the wholesale price, making it cost the consumer $8 to $13 a gallon. If sold by drink, "two bits a copy," a gallon brings twice that.

By midsummer prices in bulk are expected to be at least $2 under these figures. Best grades will then average around $10 to the consumer. For a "run" of 100 gallons the moonshiner will have $1,000, of which at least $800 is clear.

"The greatest expense in the moonshine business is goin' to jail," drawled an old-timer, dean of the "blockaders" in Catoosa county, which borders Tennessee.

This veteran of still fame makes a certain brand that is in great demand. It is called "Uncle Pete" and brings $4 more a gallon than the average grade. The manufacturer of "Uncle Pete" has prospered and created a widely known reputation for pure stuff. He caters to an exclusive trade and never has been arrested.

He confided to a friend that he expected to clear $7,500 during the coming summer. "And it won't keep me busy more than half the time," he said.

Unless great changes come, production of mountain dew will mount to new high records this year. Everything points that way.

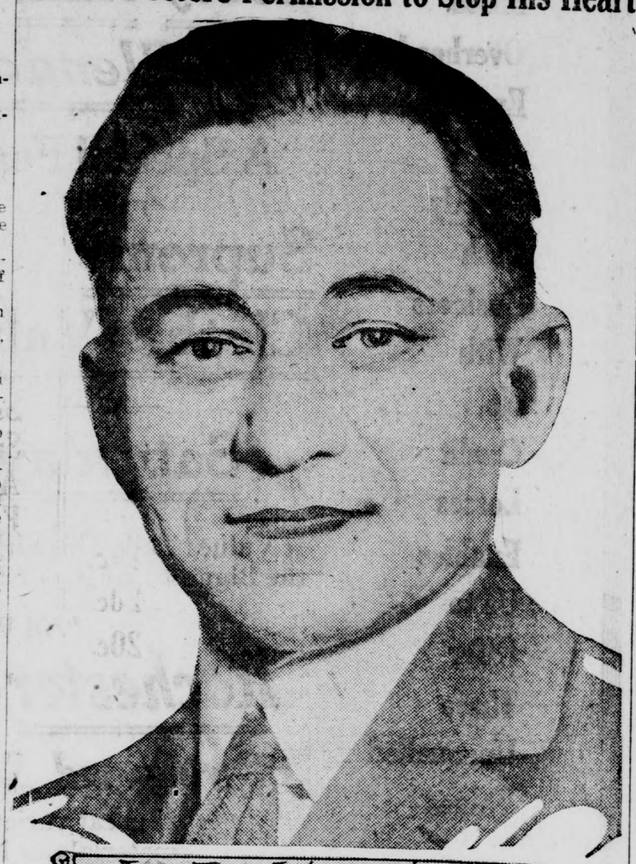
The cities are thirsty.

The mash seethes in the vats. The "beer" bubbles in the boilers. The thrush warbles in the branches.

Spring has come to bless the moonshine hills.

WOULD RISK LIFE WITH DRUG

Offers Doctors Permission to Stop His Heart



L. G. Weckbaugh, of Los Angeles, is so impressed with the marvelous powers of the new drug, adrenalin, that he has offered to permit physicians to stop his heartbeats for five hours and then inject the restoring fluid into his heart muscles, firmly believing it would instantly restore his heart to its normal functionings.

Exempt Chautauqua From City License

The Ellison-White Chautauqua was exempted from the payment of a municipal license last night by the City Councilmen.

Councilman W. A. Horn moved that a former action requiring the payment of the regular municipal license of $10 for the first day and $5 for every additional day be rescinded because of the fact that the Chautauua management was even excused from paying war tax as a "non-profit making organization."

City Clerk A. J. Van Wie called attention to the fact that the license had never been paid, anyhow.

PREVENT PLANT DISEASE

To prevent the introduction of plant diseases Uruguay requires all imported fruit except bananas and grapes to be disinfected at its port of entry.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— By Howard R. Garis —

UNCLE WIGGILY'S CLOVER

"Dear me! There isn't one in the bungalow!" exclaimed Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy on a beautiful sunshiny morning. "Not one!"

"Do you mean there isn't a Wolf or Fox in the place?" asked Uncle Wiggily, who was twinkling his pink nose, and getting ready to go adventuring. "If that's what you mean, I should think you'd be glad instead of sorry, as you seem to feel!"

"I wasn't speaking of wolves or foxes, goodness!" spoke Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy, who was the muskrat lady housekeeper for the bunny gentleman. "I mean there isn't a single clover leaf in the bungalow, and I need some to make a pudding for your dinner."

"Not a clover leaf! That's too bad!" said Uncle Wiggily. "But I'll get you some, if you like Janie."

"I wish you would," spoke the muskrat lady. "I can't make a pudding without clover, you know."

"No more you can," agreed the bunny gentleman, "any more than you can make rain without an umbrella," and away he hopped.

"Now, I wonder what he meant by that?" said Nurse Jane to herself. "You don't need an umbrella to make rain—I wonder—Oh, I guess it was one of his jokes," she chuckled.

Uncle Wiggily hopped on, over the fields and through the woods, looking for an adventure, and, at the same time, for a clover patch, where he could pull some of the green leaves to take home to Nurse Jane.

All of a sudden, as Uncle Wiggily was hopping along, his pink nose sort of tilted up in the air the better to twinkle it, all of a sudden, the bunny gentleman came to the end of a little hill, and, not knowing the hill ended so quickly, he suddenly fell off—he fell right off the hill.

"Oh, my goodness! Now I am in trouble!" he cried.

But, instead, he found himself in clover, so to speak. He had fallen into a big, soft patch of green clover, and it was like falling on a feather bed or a load of hay.

"Ha! Ha! That was lucky!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "I'm in luck!"

The bunny gentleman looked about him. On all sides were tender green leaves, amid which he was lying. And, reaching out, he began to nibble some, thinking he would have a bit of lunch before he picked the clover for Nurse Jane.

But Uncle Wiggily had no sooner chewed some of the green leaves than a funny look came over his face. He wrinkled up his nose, gave a shiver and cried:

"Oh, I've eaten some sheep sorrel by mistake!" And that's what he had done. Growing up among the clover and looking something like it was a lot of the sorrel. It had smaller leaves than clover, though shaped much like them, and it also had tiny yellow blossoms. In some places this plant is called yellow wood sorrel or lady's sorrel.

"Ho! Ho! It's queer I made that mistake—eating sour grass for clover;" chuckled Uncle Wiggily. 'My mouth is all puckered up as if I had sucked a lemon. Well, I won't do it again."

Then he ate some of the real clover, and he was about to pick a big bunch for Nurse Jane to make up into a pudding when, all of a sudden, up from behind a big rock popped the Fuzzy Fox.

'Oh ho!" snarled the Fox. "Did you come here for me to nibble your ears?"

"No, I didn't," said Uncle Wiggily politely, as he ate some more clover.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "I'm in luck."

"Well, I'm going to nibble them just the same!" snarled the Fox.

Then Uncle Wiggily thought perhaps he could play a trick on the Fox. Picking a paw full of the puckery sour sheep sorrel leaves, the bunny gentleman held them out to the Fox, saying:

"Did you ever nibble clover to make you more hungry? Try a bit of clover before you nibble my ears!"

"I'm hungry enough as it is!" snapped the Fox, making a rude grab for the sour grass. "But I'll take this clover just the same," for he didn't know the difference, you see. "And after I eat this I'll nibble your ears!" he cried.

Maybe you will and perhaps you won't!" chuckled the bunny. And, surely enough, no sooner had the Fox chewed on the sour, puckery sorrel than he howled:

"Oh, what has happened? Oh vinegar! Oh, lemons! Oh, my mouth is all puckered up." And, truly, it was. The mouth of the Fox shrank so small that he couldn't have bitten the head off a pin. And he was so frightened, not knowing what was going to happen to him, that away he ran without nibbling the bunny's ears.

"Between the clover and the sour grass I'm in luck!" chuckled Mr. Longears. Then he picked the clover for Nurse Jane's pudding. And if the goldfish doesn't go to sleep in the bathtub so the cake of soap has no place to slide down hill, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Jimmie the duck.

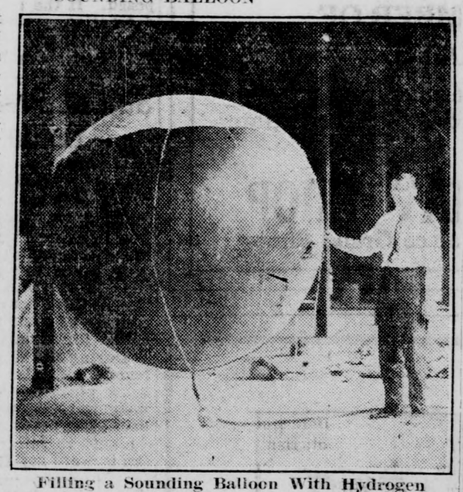
SCIENCE and INVENTION By Arthur Budd

SOUNDING BALLOON

THE highest reach made by ambitious man into the atmosphere up to date was accomplished by a "pilot" balloon which attained an elevation of twenty-four miles. "Sounding" balloons have got up as high as twenty-two miles, recently. The difference between the two is that the former is smaller and, unlike the sounding balloon, carries no automatic recording instruments.



Filling a Sounding Balloon With Hydrogen

The Army Air Weather Bureau Service has of late been co-operating with the U. S. Weather Bureau in a systematic business of sending up sounding balloons twice a day from stations all over the country, for the purpose of studying directions and velocities of winds at given levels, as well as other atmospheric conditions. From these observations a daily air map, so to call it, is drawn, and the information is placed at the disposal of the postoffice department for the use of its aerial mail service.

The sounding balloons are purchased by the government in quantities of thousands. They are made of the best quality of rubber, and, save for their superiority in that respect and in point of size, are much like the toy balloons sold by street-venders. Such a balloon, inflated with a given quantity of hydrogen, has a diameter of six feet. But, as it ascends into the air—the latter becoming thinner and thinner as greater elevation is attained—it expands to a diameter of about twenty feet. Finally it bursts.

It ascends at a definite rate, so exactly known that its height can be determined with fair accuracy by the number of minutes and seconds which have elapsed since it started. But observation with a telescopic instrument called a theodolite affords a correction. When it bursts, it falls slowly, a linen cap converting itself into a parachute; and thus, on reaching the ground, it delivers without injury the small cage-box it carries, containing instruments.

One of the instruments, a combined thermometer and barometer, registers the temperature at each level reached by the balloon, indicating the degrees of increasing cold by drawing a line on a sheet of white paper. As one ascends through the atmospheric sea, the temperature falls seventeen degrees to the mile. At an elevation of twenty-five miles it is supposed to be about 200 degrees below zero. Fifty miles higher it must approximate the absolute zero of the void of space, which is 461 degrees below the Fahrenheit zero.

The highest climb into the sky ever accomplished by a human being was made not long ago by Major R. W. Schroeder, at Dayton, Ohio, in an airplane. Wearing an electrically heated suit, and carrying with him a tank of oxygen, he reached an elevation of 36,020 feet, or nearly seven miles.

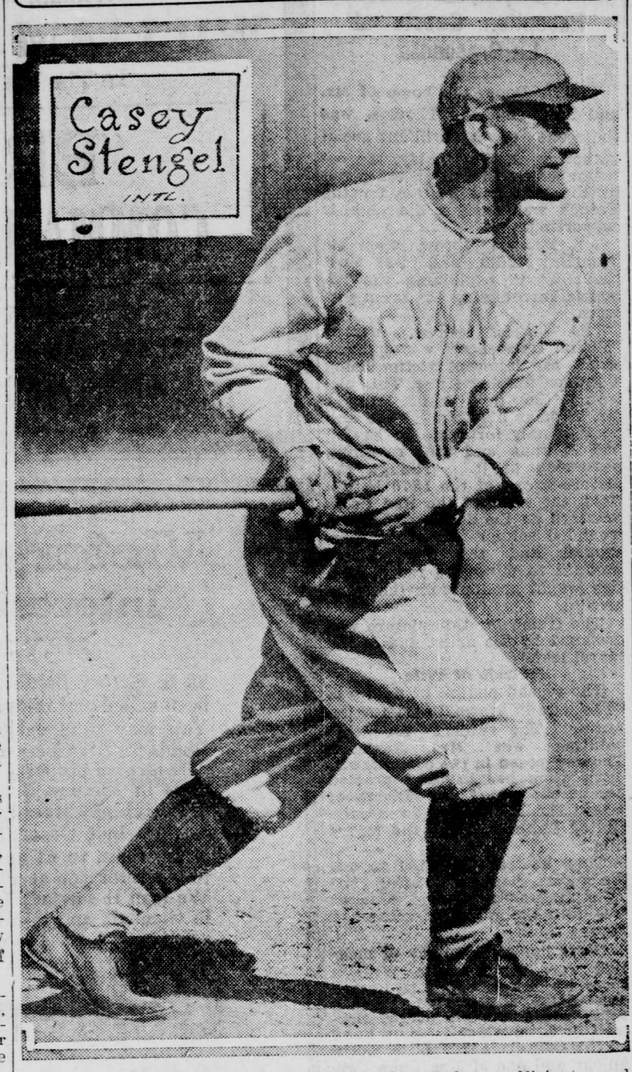
Can't Keep Him Down!



By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service

NEW YORK, May 18.—If John J. McGraw, the well-known manager, wishes to be consistent he will step out at the end of the present season and purchase a new first baseman just because George Kelly failed to hit forty home runs, or perhaps it will be an outfielder to replace Irish Meusel, who may so far forget himself as to fall below .350 in the official averages. That, of course, sounds about as reasonable as cabbage in the buttonhole; yet for the past two seasons John has followed a policy not altogether dissimilar in his pre-season selection of centerfielders.

Hit 'Em Hard in '22

Starting the 1922 campaign, he had three candidates for the position—namely, Ralph Shinners, a so-called $40,000 recruit; Bill Cunningham, a near-regular, and Casey Stengel, a veteran hoping for the best. At the finish Shinners was a flop, Cunningham merely a good hitter of left-hand pitching, and Stengel the batting leader of the entire outfit, with a mark somewhere around .367. This latter might have been deemed ample, sufficient and enough for anyone's taste, but McGraw had let himself in for the $75,000 purchase of Jimmy O'Connell and seemed to be in duty bound to string along with his judgment. At any rate, he assigned O'Connell to center field, Cunningham as alternate and Stengel to the second team during the training camp days at San Antonio. Seemingly a .367 hitter is a mere nothing in McGraw's life.

Can't Keep Him Down

But fate again has intervened between Casey and the dugout. Last year he got his chance because Shinners was hit on the head with a pitched ball and wasn't hitting the size of his shoe, anyhow. This season O'Connell fell ill directly after the opening series, and Stengel again stepped in to resume his slugging at the point where he left off last fall.

Without preamble he smote a home run over the wall in Brooklyn and won two games with his timely hitting. In short, whether O'Connell ultimately proves to be worth $75,000 or $7,500, Stengel is too good a hitter to remain on the bench with any degree of permanency. You can't keep a squirrel on the ground.

Vigil Now Favorite For Kentucky Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 18.—The final touches were added to the preparations for the forty-ninth Kentucky Derby today. Tonight the town will be full of race followers; tomorrow morning early the pari-mutuel machines will be clicking off the bets and the clerks passing out the pasteboards. Today that strange gathering of folk—ranging from millionaire to tramp—or from tramp to millionaire—was engaged in the same pastime, that of picking a winner from among eighteen horses which are expected to line up at the starting post at Churchill Downs.

The sentiment has switched slightly. Vigil, winner of the Preakness at Pimlico, now holds the center of attention with the Whitney-Greentree stable entry relegated to second place. Bo McMillan, pride of the Kentucky bluegrass, and Thomas Pendergast, of Kansas City, are sneaking up in public esteem.

TAGGING ALL BASES

It remained for Dick Rudolph, baseball's octogenarian, pitching his first complete game in four years, to shut out the Pirates, 1 to 0, ten innings, and halt Charley Grimm's hitting rampage. Grimm had hit safely in twenty-five straight games.

The Yankees made it two in a row from the Browns, hitting Shocker, their arch enemy, at will, and winning, 9 to 2. Ruth hit his fifth home run of the season.

Everyone took a swing during the course of the Giants' 13-to-6 victory over the Reds, home runs rattling off the bats of Meausel Roush and Kelly.

The Senators pulled out a 3-to-2 decision over the White Sox in the tenth, Evans producing the winning run with a sacrifice fly.

Cy Williams smote his fourteenth home run of the campaign, but the Phils lost with their customary facility, the Cubs winning this time 7 to 4. Alexander of the Cubs passed three men in the sixth, after pitching fifty-one innings without issuing a base on balls.

Wilson Avenue Wins From Glendale School

The second league game between the intermediate schools was played yesterday by the intermediate teams, on the grounds at Wilson avenue, resulting in a score of 12 to 8 in favor of Wilson avenue. After Allan Lovell, made a home run in the third inning the Glendale boys held Wilson down 8 to 6 and victory seemed assured, but the Wilson boys rallied in the eighth inning, bringing in the deciding runs. The senior teams will clash today.

Lineups yesterday were:

Wilson—G. Dell, c; A. Lovell, p; R. Heck, 1b; R. Randall, 2b; N. Killinger, ss; G. Mitchell, 3b; J. Packard, rf; F. Wyckoff, cf; A. Hudson lf.

Glendale—C. Williams, c; J. Huesman, 6; G. Okada, 1b; H. Springer, 2b; L. Sunderland, ss; D. Hamilton, 3b; R. King, rf; F. Keogh, cf; C. Colins, lf.

Supervisor A. T. Blanford, umpired.

FIGHT RESULTS

AT LONG ISLAND CITY—Kid Kaplan, Meriden, Conn., knocked out Danny Frush, Cleveland, sixth round; Billy De Foe, St. Paul, got the decision over Jack Hausner, New York, twelve rounds.

Dempsey Buys Cow To Aid in Training

GREAT FALLS, Mont., May 18.—Jack Dempsey is in possession of a prize Hereford cow today that will be stabled at his Great Falls park training quarters until he has completed preparations for his Fourth of July title battle with Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul. Dempsey purchased the animal at a fancy price at a cattle show here yesterday, and it is expected to keep himself and the large array of trainers and camp employes in milk and butter for the next six weeks.

Dempsey spent today supervising the construction of two rings in the new training quarters and he announced that he would get down to hard training by Saturday or Sunday. With two husky sparring partners already in camp, Willie Meehan and Joe Benjamin expected late today and Manager Kearns on the way with three unnamed heavyweights, the champion will have plenty material to sock next week.

YANKEE GOLFERS BATTLE IN GALE

American Teams Make Good Showing in Skirmish For Walker Cup

BULLETIN

LEEDS, Eng., May 18.—Walter Hagen, American golfer, who holds the British open championship, defeated Gene Sarazen, American open champion today, 3 up and 1 to play, in the semi-finals of the professional tournament held under the auspices of the Yorkshire Evening News.

Earlier Sarazen defeated Ockenden, 5 up and 3 to play, and Hagen defeated Havers at the 19th hole after an uphill fight.

By ROBERT E. HARLOW
For International News Service

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 18.—While a piercing wind, at times assuming the proportions of a gale, struck home to the bone, the American golfers managed to hold their own with the British in the open skirmishes today for the Walker cup, emblematic of international team supremacy.

At the end of the first 18 holes, Bob Gardner and Max Marston, of the American team, were five up on Robert Harris and V. L. Hooman. George V. Rotan, of Houston, Texas, and S. Davidson Herron, of Pittsburgh, were six up on E. W. E. Holderness, former British champion, and the Scottish star, Hope.

Some of the American pairs did not fare so well, Francis Ouimet and Jesse Sweetzer being 4 down to Cyril Tolley and Roger Wethered, while Harrison Johnston and Jack Neville were 5 down to Wilson and Murray at the end of the morning play.

Marston and Gardner drove accurately and approached consistently while Rotan and Herron completely outplayed Holderness and Hope at every stage of the game.

"The City Council be and is hereby requested to make all reasonable effort to secure said buildings and grounds by option or otherwise for the purposes above named and to submit the same to the vote of the people at an election to be called for that purpose."

Jury Frees Woman Who Murdered Man

KLAMATH FALLS, Or., May 18.—Mrs. Mabel Nichols, on trial here charged with having killed Robert Greer at Summit Station near here in December, 1922, was acquitted by a jury yesterday. According to Mrs. Nichols' confession, she killed Greer, with whom she was living, when he attempted to force her into night life.

The jury deliberated only forty-five minutes before a verdict was returned.

When Mrs. Nichols killed Greer, she immediately surrendered to the Sheriff at Bend. She told officers that Greer had persuaded her to leave her husband and small daughter to live with him. Greer often drank, she said, which caused him to abuse her and to demand money.

On the night of the shooting, she said, Greer returned home in a drunken condition. After they had quarreled, during which he attempted to induce her to enter the night life and supply him with money, she snatched a revolver from the dresser and shot him through the head.

because it is non-neutralized."

This is Clover Glen butter, made from sweet cream, a non-neutralized butter.

Most other butters are churned from cream that has been allowed to become over-sour and in many instances rancid. Such cream must be treated with alkali as a neutralizer before it is made into butter.

Good grocers know the quality of Clover Glen sweet cream butter and they recommend it.

DELAY GRANT OF BUS LINE PERMIT

P. E. Application Is Held Up Until Expiration of Gulick Option

The City Council last night took the attitude that an application from the Pacific Electric to extend its bus line to Kenneth road would not be welcome until the expiration of C. D. Gulick's ninety-day option to establish bus service over this route.

Godfrey Edwards, member of the realty firm of Edwards & Wildey, stated that he had no desire to get the Pacific Electric to promise to establish a bus line along Kenneth road once more only to have the application for a permit denied by the City Council.

Opposition to the consideration of the subject at this time was made by Alex Mitchell of 2001 Kenneth road, who intimated given to the Pacific Electric.

S. S. Gilhuly of 342 El Bonita avenue called attention to the fact that Mr. Gulick's ninety-day option over this route still has forty days to run.

LA CRESCENTA

RAISE FUND FOR FRENCH ORPHAN

Artist Displays Pictures to Reception Guests at La Crescenta

Cuddle Doon, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Thomas, was the scene of a brilliant social gathering on Wednesday, the occasion being the silver tea given by the host and hostess for the French war orphan the club is supporting.

Mr. Thomas threw open his beautiful studio and was most charming in explaining the romance surrounding his salon pictures.

His largest canvas, named "Victim Innocence," was a death scene, the innocent victim being a French nursing sister. This picture is the one which brought Mr. Thomas his first laurels and he is doubly fortunate in having had it hung and still retaining possession of it. Though the picture is one of the 1870 battlefield, the sight of the Red Cross brassard on the doctor's arm, the wounded soldier in the foreground and the dead sister brought to mind the recent battles fought no doubt on the same ground.

The frame for this picture was designed by the artist and is the laurel leaf.

Portrait of Wife

The second picture of note was "The lady in brown," also a salon canvas. The subject for this painting was Mrs. Seymour Thomas, posed in the costume she wore when her husband greeted her at the wharf in Liverpool where she had come from the United States to meet and marry him.

This, he was delighted to tell his guests, happened after the "Victim Innocence" had brought him into the ranks of renowned men.

Other portraits worthy of mention were those of Dr. William Osler of Oxford, or, as he is now known, Sir William Osler, also a salon portrait. One of Dr. Norman Bridges, which is to be hung in the California School of Technology and one of Mrs. John Percival Jones, widow of Judge Jones of Santa Monica.

Mr. Thomas also delighted his guests with an exhibition of small landscapes of California with the glorious blues of mountains and skies as a complete contrast to the dun colored ones of provincial France.

After the exhibit the guests retired to the house for tea, and the funds raised from their silver offerings amounted to $50.

Mrs. Singleton played two piano selections brilliantly.

Assisting the hostess were Mrs. Mark Collins, Mrs. Erwin, Mrs. Wardell, Mrs. Fred Anderson, Mrs. Dunlop and Mrs. Martin. Many out-of-town guests were present.

Members of the Woman's Club are requested not to make any other engagements for the afternoon of June 13, as that is the date of the club luncheon and installation of officers. They are also reminded to mail their reservations for the luncheon to Mrs. Turk, La Crescenta Hotel, La Crescenta, a week ahead of the 13th of June.

After the first ballot Dr. Silsley, who received thirty-six votes had his name withdrawn. After the second ballot Dr. Walker, who received 133 on the first ballot and fifty-six on the second ballot had his name withdrawn.

The third ballot found Dr. Wishart and Bryan only running. Dr. Wishart received 451 and Mr. Bryan 427 votes. The vote for Dr. Wishart was then made unanimous and he was escorted to the platform while the more than
